Selective Protectionism to Defense of World Market Free Competition: Results of Public Lecture and History of “Window on Europe”

Results of Public Lecture

There have been many interesting events in my life, but this visit and a public lecture at the University of Patriarchate (Georgia, 20 May, 2019) was really unusual. For wonderful hospitality, naturally, inexpressible Thanks to the University Leaders - Mr. Sergo Vardosanidze and Ms. Marina Chkhartishvili. And to this, I with modesty must note, that I was born on Christmas and now I had the feeling, that Christ was with us to the end of my Lecture. Fortunately, my esteemed colleague Givi Bedianashvili noted the same thing.

During the lectures, I have floated the idea, that free competition should be saved by selective protectionism. Some believe that protectionism interferes with freedom, but without this it is impossible to save talented and efficient market participants from the masked monopolies, which cause mass starvation and decline even in unique agriculture.

If we carefully read the Biblical stories, including about builders, seeders and talents, we will see that God is always on the side of the smart Humans, but injustice is often especially united against them.

In the post-Soviet space, various atheists are still active, who oppose the belief in God and progressive shifts and cooperation with economically developed countries. I want to remind them lessons from the history of Russia about Great Peter, who opened the window of civilization to Europe.

Europe cannot be regarded as a renounced civilization. The world needs the World Union as well and we must go through the stages of global customs zone, free trade, a common market and an wise economic union in the world.

Briefly to Introduction

After my newest scientific-research experiences and observation of world processes [1-104], I want continue to publish the results of my research on undeniable evidences of the need for a real world market.

You remember, I recently wrote, that I see many problems from different monopolies in global economy and worked out appeal to dear scientists in all countries for the creating of real world market. As You know, I think also, that Real Global Market will not happen immediately and for the first time, we need to create, for example, a Union of the United States and the European Union and further expand this process. States will retain their Political and Cultural identity, but the economy in the world market will be unified - zero customs duty, general taxes (which will avoid double taxation), unified electronic currency system and no to any international economic barriers. All this will ensure the transparency of economic processes (which will relieve from previously invisible monopolistic dictatorships and criminal migrations), significant improvement of environmental conditions, access to resources and the better standard of living in both developed and developing countries.

As you know, in our information age “the measure of information we shall focus on to start is the entropy function, defined as follows”<sup>1</sup>:

$$H(X) = \sum p(x) \log(1/p(x))$$

Similarly, we measure the maturity of an economic structure. My very careful calculations showed, that the structure of the world economy, despite the fact, that no one regulates this structure, is more mature than the economic structures of all different countries and regions.

We get the fact, that God has given man everything, that He needs and, the most essentially, to use all this wisely - not to fight each other and to fight against crime together with the real world market.

Research Proposal Essence and Conclusions

The first signs of the desired Real World Market undoubtedly are demonstrated by Google, which with its professional and maximally decentralized horizontal management, provides incredible opportunities for World scientific thought to “fly up” at an incredible pace upwards.

The Internet has shaped the contours of the world market, but it is not quite real yet - there are many barriers inside this space.

Opponents of the Real World Market must realize, that by God's Will, this will undoubtedly happen – for easy example, the role of global technical networks is growing and they will need to be ruled only together.

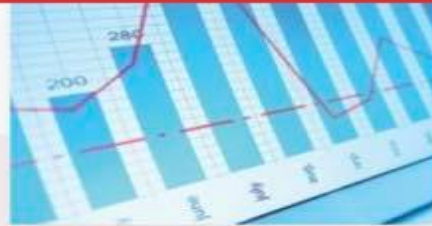

The Savior, in his Bible stories<sup>2</sup> (Matthew: 25: About 10 Virgins, Talents, etc.), teaches us, that a Human must be deliberate and economically minded. This is very dangerous, if we lose a lot of time and criminally resist the process of creating a Real World Market - symbols and means of friendship of peoples and general prosperity.
