MARXIST DEATH SQUADS GUN DOWN WHITES

The Einsatzgruppen were paramilitary death squads in the Third Reich which engaged in mass killings in German occupied Europe. They played an integral role in the implementation of the Final Solution against the Jews and were responsible for the deaths of a million and a half Jews. Students of history have observed the wheel of evil turn backward and stop at the campaigns of these mobile agents of death and make a fearsome and terrifying substitution. Moved by the hand of today's Marxists, the wheel of evil has placed white people in the crosshairs of hatred and violence and launched a second racial holocaust. Today's offshoots of Marx, the activists of black power, have continued the race hatred campaigns of yesterday's offshoots of Marx, the German national socialists, and set up agitation and propaganda machines in homes, offices and schools throughout the world dedicated to the vilification and abuse of white people and the overthrow of the liberal democratic order. The dissemination of racial slander and the destruction of free institutions: such was the aim of the German national socialists, such is the aim of their black nationalist successors, and such is the eternal aim of Marxists everywhere, of all stripes and varieties, who have followed in the footsteps of their Bolshevik masters. In place of a race called the proletariat, championed by the original, first generation Marxists who seized power in Russia, the heirs and descendants of the Bolsheviks have substituted whites as the hate objects and launched a new race war of extermination during the closing hours of Western civilization. Today's black swastika incarnations of German national socialism have issued a program and manifesto of the latest race hatred insanity and prompted students of history to observe the return of special action groups invading and occupying the former citadels of reason and morality. Their program and manifesto has proclaimed that white people are inherently violent and corrupt. It has proclaimed that white people possess a mental defect which compels them to hate and terrorize nonwhites. It has proclaimed that whites are nonproductive, parasitic and driven by an insatiable desire to expropriate nonwhites. It has proclaimed that whites were born in original sin, the sin of thinking in terms of justice and fairness, and are thus irredeemable. It has proclaimed that the ideals of truth, objectivity, industriousness, punctuality and responsible parenting are white ideals and have no place in a progressive society. It has proclaimed that honesty and integrity are toxic products of whiteness and must be eliminated. It has proclaimed that a progressive society promotes hatred of whites and all that whites represent, capitalism, America and the West, and seeks to establish a Marxist totalitarian state. It has proclaimed that a progressive society interprets history through the prism of race and racial conflict. It has proclaimed that a progressive society prioritizes racial identity above individual existence and has installed a black master race upon the throne of absolute power. It has proclaimed that American history is rooted in hatred of blacks and this hatred is genetically imprinted upon the American character. It has proclaimed that white people possess innate biological processes which impel them to hate and kill blacks. It has proclaimed that whites and blacks possess intrinsic differences and must be kept apart at all times. It has proclaimed that whites and blacks represent hostile and incompatible species of life. It has proclaimed that whites are physically and cognitively inferior to blacks. It has proclaimed that the science of genetics justifies racism against whites and a race war to exterminate whites. It has proclaimed that the white race consists of barbaric devils who have oppressed and exploited superior nonwhite indigenous peoples. It has proclaimed that thousands of years ago, black Africans traveled to America and helped the Aztecs build pyramids as monuments to the racially superior character of these two nonwhite peoples. It has proclaimed that whites used the AIDS virus to commit genocide against blacks. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a racialized society, a black controlled society, and a society which has abolished liberal democracy on the grounds that white racism is woven into its fabric. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has indoctrinated its students to believe that capitalism is a system of white racism and that true wisdom and justice demand enmity and prejudice against capitalism and whites. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has established a race based curriculum, promotes racial animus against white people, and programs students to despise and seek to overthrow the capitalist system. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches students that white people are demons whose original crime was that they were born. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system singles out white students for unending volleys of vituperative abuse. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system promotes the falsification of historical facts in the name of advancing the black ideological struggle. It has proclaimed that a progressive society sanctions the toppling of statues, the destruction of property and the perpetration of mass violence in the name of advancing the black nationalist cause. Look at the world of today's black swastika bearers and see them condemn capitalism as systemically racist. See them condemn criticisms of black racism as insults, slurs, slights, hostilities, disparagements, and forms of harm and aggression committed against blacks. Hear them condemn free societies as breeding grounds for interpersonal racism against blacks. Hear them condemn the virtues of individualism, integrity, self reliance, self control, delayed gratification, hard work, career ambition, family commitments, planning for the future, and empirical, scientific thinking as products of white culture. Hear them condemn respect for the rule of law and the rights of others as products of white politics. Hear them condemn the pursuit of rational flourishing and rational happiness as products of white morality. Hear them condemn the system of limited government, constitutional liberty and equal protection before the law as the product of the white mind. Hear them condemn the belief in universal humanity and the equality of all races, and sound the clarion call to black racists, black supremacists, black fascists and black Hitlerites to storm the ramparts of Western civilization: "The Smithsonian's National Museum of African American History and Culture published a document entitled, Talking About Race: Whiteness, contending that white dominated US culture is systemically racist. According to the Smithsonian, people of color in the US face the problem of 'whiteness (and its accepted normality).' It is characterized by 'everyday microaggressions toward people of color. Acts of microaggressions include verbal, nonverbal, and environmental slights, snubs or insults toward nonwhites. Whether intentional or not, these attitudes communicate hostile, derogatory, or harmful messages.' 'Thinking about race is very different for nonwhite persons living in America. People of color must always consider their racial identity, whatever the situation, due to the systemic and interpersonal racism that still exists,' the Smithsonian contends. Using data from Some Aspects and Assumptions of White Culture in the United States by Judith H. Katz, an infographic lays out traits that characterize whiteness, or the 'white dominant culture'. The traits include: rugged individualism (self reliance), the Protestant work ethic, a future orientation (which entails a willingness to delay gratification), an emphasis on scientific/objective thinking, the nuclear family, respect for the rule of law grounded in individual rights. These traits undeniably remain important in American culture. Thomas Jefferson, the primary drafter of the Declaration Of Independence, said he was trying to capture the 'American mind' when he wrote, 'We hold these truths to be self evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.' The idea that these beliefs are universally true and apply equally to all races in the US does not seem to be accepted by the Smithsonian." (Smithsonian Targets Whiteness, Lists Issues Like Rational Thinking And Self Reliance As Problematic by Randy DeSoto). Hate is a malignancy which wears many faces and dons many hoods. The first theologian of hate was Marx, who invented class hate, the hate of the disgruntled and the disaffected toward those who are talented and intelligent. This ugly, frightening, inhuman, unpleasant monster created in the nineteenth century brought forth a terrifying progeny in the twentieth. By the logic of Marx's tribalism, race hate was destined to make its appearance upon the stage of history. Marx's black racists have assumed control over the present day and institutionalized their evil and sickness upon the ruins of civilized society.

WOMEN ON THE SUPREME COURT: A HISTORY OF FAILURE

In ancient numerology, the number five was held to possess special meaning and significance. It was held to be a lucky number, and when the gaze of Lord Mercury was strong, it was held to bestow great fortune and unimaginable benefits upon people. Students of American politics see the number five in a totally different and totally negative light. They see it as signifying an attack on justice taking place at the highest levels of the United States government. They see it as signifying the radicalization of a certain demographic in society, a process which commenced in the early decades of the twentieth century, and made it virtually impossible to find reliable members of this group to serve in high government positions and to defend the constitution. They see the number five as signifying the number of women who have been named to serve on the United States Supreme Court. They see this group as providing a window, a snapshot and a microcosm of the state of women today in the nation and demonstrating, in the most fearsome and terrifying manner possible, what happens when red fronts are entrusted with federal power and allowed to wield influence over the daily lives of ordinary people. The radicalization of women is a process which is finished and complete and has produced a monolithic block of political power which has dynamited the institutions of liberal democracy and run roughshod over the rule of law. Students of politics know the cause of this radicalization and know that it is the signpost of a disease which points into the decline and fall of human social organization itself. The cause is the movement of identity politics derived from Marx. Denying the primacy of the individual and denying that individuals alone possess rights and freedoms, the neoMarxists view society as composed of mystical formations based upon gender, race and class, formations which vie with each other for absolute power as they battle over the dead body of Enlightenment civilization. This movement of identity politics has targeted women and transformed them into a violent mob exalting the state and community, demanding special privileges and prerogatives, and worshiping at the altar of the will to power. Students of politics have gone down the list of women judges on the Supreme Court and seen a recital of treason. They have studied the opinions of women judges on the court and seen a litany of brazen state worship. They have attempted to find differences among these judges and to avoid generalizations about women but have been blasted incessantly by a single melody, a melody of deference to the mob and rejection of the constitutional text, a melody without exceptions, without pause and without reprieve. They have issued their report and it commences with Sandra Day O'Connor, the first woman appointed to the court, in 1983. Listen to O'Connor in the case Grutter vs Bollinger (2003). Listen to her uphold affirmative action in student admissions. Listen to her proclaim that a student admissions process which violates the Fourteenth Amendment's Equal Protection Clause by favoring "underrepresented minority groups" does not in fact violate the Fourteenth Amendment's Equal Protection Clause because A is not A if the mob says so. Listen to her proclaim that the Constitution upholds discrimination on the basis of race: "the Constitution does not prohibit the law school's narrowly tailored use of race in admissions decisions to further a compelling interest in obtaining the educational benefits that flow from a diverse student body." Listen to her uphold the swastika policies of racial preferences and race biased admissions: "The Court takes the Law School at its word that it would like nothing better than to find a race neutral admissions formula and will terminate its use of racial preferences as soon as practicable. The Court expects that twenty five years from now, the use of racial preferences will no longer be necessary to further the interest approved today." The next judge studied in this report is Ruth Bader Ginsburg, appointed to the Court in 1993. Listen to Ginsburg in the case Olmstead vs Lois Curtis. (1999). Listen to her reject the existence of free will and personal responsibility and proclaim that mental illness is a medical disability and not a character failing. Listen to her proclaim that people who choose to become mentally ill are covered by the Americans with Disabilities Act. Listen to her proclaim that the forced institutionalization of a person who has chosen to become mentally ill is a form of discrimination under Title II of the ADA. Listen to her proclaim that mentally ill people have a legal right to receive community placement in place of institutionalization: "The State's treatment professionals have determined that community placement is appropriate, [b] the transfer from institutional care to a less restrictive setting is not opposed by the affected individual, and [c] the placement can be reasonably accommodated, taking into account the resources available to the State and the needs of others with mental disabilities. Unjustified isolation is discrimination based on disability." The next judge studied in this report is Sonia Sotomayor, appointed to the court in 2009. Listen to Sotomayor in the case Schuette vs Coalition to Defend Affirmative Action (2014). Listen to her proclaim that race and sex based discrimination in public university admissions does not violate the Fourteenth Amendment's Equal Protection Clause even though it does, because the constitution means whatever politics and ideology say it means. Listen to her proclaim that the system of equal protection for all and selection on the basis merit disadvantages racial minorities. Listen to her proclaim that racist admissions policies are justified on the grounds of achieving racial diversity. Listen to her proclaim that Article One of the Michigan Constitution, which states that "Michigan's public universities shall not discriminate against, or grant preferential treatment to, any individual or group on the basis of race, sex, color, ethnicity, or national origin in the operation of public employment, public education, or public contracting", has no place in a progressive society, which mandates racist and sexist policies in all public and private spheres. The next judge studied in this report is Elena Kagan, appointed to the court in 2010. Look at the philosophy of Kagan and see rabbits pulled out of hats and fed to the mobs like raw flesh. See laws rewritten to include rights never before dreamed of but demanded by the reds in the present day. See a massive act of deception perpetrated and the noble banner of legal textualism paraded in an attempt to negate and deny legal textualism and to manufacture rights out of thin air. See Title VII of the Civil Rights Act recast, reworded and reworked as a declaration of protection against what it does not mention, discrimination against homosexuals, and as a declaration of assault against reality. This assault has assumed the form of denying the fact that sex is determined by genes and not by human activity, and by declaring that people can choose their own sex and those who identify as members of the opposite sex have a right to be treated as members of that sex and to be protected by antidiscrimination laws covering that sex: "If you wanted to bolster the idea that sexual orientation and gender identity ought to be included in the protections extended by Title VII, this was a canny line of questioning. Kagan was appealing to textualism—an approach generally associated with conservative jurists. She was saying that what mattered was the words of the statute, not what legislators might have intended. Nor did it matter that, since 1964, Congress had not amended Title VII to specifically cover sexual orientation or gender identity. The relevant language of the 1964 law forbade employment discrimination 'because of' sex, and, Kagan was suggesting, it should therefore protect a man who was fired for dating men, if a woman who dated men would not have been fired." (Is The Supreme Court's Fate In Elena Kagan's Hands? by Margaret Talbot). The last judge studied in this report is Amy Coney Barrett, appointed to the court in 2020. Look at Barrett's rulings and see a philosophy of brazen state worship broadcast in the form of high handed, peremptory, one line orders issued against those who sought justice. Confronted with the fact that the Pennsylvania Supreme Court did not have the power to expand mail in voting in the 2020 presidential election, Barrett ruled no standing. Confronted again with the Pennsylvania Supreme Court's unconstitutional actions, Barrett next ruled moot. Confronted with the fact that four states, Michigan, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, and Georgia, allowed widespread voter fraud in the 2020 presidential election, Barrett ruled no standing. Confronted with the fact that the Individual Mandate provision of the Affordable Care Act is unconstitutional whether or not penalties are attached to it for noncompliance, Barrett ruled no standing. Civilized, law abiding people understand that when a government in a society violates the law, every human being in that society has a moral right and a moral standing to challenge and sue, and therefore has a legal right and a legal standing to sue. In his novel The World Set Free, H. G. Wells describes a special type of nuclear bomb which explodes indefinitely. Over the past half century, five judicial bombs have been placed on the United States Supreme Court. Five women, five specimens of permanent radicalization, exploding without surcease in the final, lawless hours of America.

REDS KIDNAP SCHOOL KIDS

On March 1, 1932, Charles Lindbergh Jr, the twenty month old son of aviation hero Charles Lindbergh, was kidnapped from his crib in East Amwell, New Jersey. On May 12, the child's corpse was discovered by the side of a nearby road. The trial of the kidnapper was described as "the biggest story since the Resurrection" and as one of the "trials of the century". Civilized people have seen in the infamous Lindbergh kidnapping a tragic allegory of the present day and have seen, compounding this new evil a thousandfold, the kidnappers avoid trial and escape the bar of justice. They have seen schoolchildren in classrooms throughout the world mentally, morally and spiritually kidnapped by the reds, taken to the Devil's fairground, transformed into swastika bearing race haters ready to riot, rampage, kill and destroy, and seen the kidnappers lauded as heroes and saviors for their efforts. Civilized people have read the program and manifesto of the reds and are convinced beyond the shadow of a doubt that the masses have lost their minds, have been depleted of their intellectual energy and reserves, have, in the senescent stages of Western culture, hooked up their brains to a latter day Volksempfänger broadcasting from atop a black Aryan radio tower, and have declared totaler krieg against the liberal democratic order conceived in a noonday world called the Enlightenment. This program and manifesto of Hitler's black power heirs and Marx's black proletarian hordes has proclaimed that the centerpiece of a progressive school curriculum is race based, social justice education. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has renounced instruction in academic subjects, such as reading, literature and mathematics, and focused exclusively on teaching racial history and studying leaders of color. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches students about race and about nothing else than race. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches students that capitalism is a system of black slavery, institutional racism and implicit bias against people of color. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system weaves race into every subject it teaches; it teaches race based mathematics and race based politics; and it teaches that civil rights belong to blacks and to nobody else but blacks. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system is filled to overflowing with race propaganda and teaches that the only true scientists and mathematicians have been nonwhite scientists and mathematicians. The reds' manifesto has proclaimed that a progressive school system mandates as a requirement for graduation that students take black and ethnic studies courses and show proficiency in the art of spreading false and misleading information about whites. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system requires all teachers to undergo special training courses which promote preferential treatment for blacks in the name of diversity, equity, inclusion, antidiscrimination, cultural responsiveness and combating implicit antiblack bias. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches English, science and history from nonwhite perspectives and with the goal of fomenting hatred of whites. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system promotes black nationalism and nonEuropean ethnicism in the name of "decentering traditional white perspectives and centering the voices of people of color". It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has removed The Adventures Of Huckleberry Finn, To Kill A Mockingbird and Of Mice And Men from the curriculum on the grounds that they includes characters who use the word nigger. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches that the liberal order of equal protection for all produces severe trauma in blacks and requires superhuman stamina for blacks to endure. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has instituted two programs, BOOM for Break Out of the Margins, and SHOUT for Sistahs Having Outstanding Uniqueness Together, which promote black solidarity, militancy, bigotry and violence. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches students that the European explorations to civilize savage cultures were illicit on the grounds that no culture founded by nonwhites can ever be savage or backward, while every culture founded by whites is savage and backward and nothing else but savage and backward. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system mandates that all discussions and conversations between students and teachers revolve exclusively around issues of race and ethnicity and promote the privileges and prerogatives of nonwhites. It has proclaimed that capitalism is a system of strident white racism and blatant white privilege. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches black students how to stir up and agitate each other to kill whites in courses entitled Shared Racial Experiences. It has proclaimed that capitalism is the scourge of the white man which discriminates against the master races of the planet: blacks, indigenous people, and people of color. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system promotes community and solidarity among its nonwhite students and singles out white students for vilification and abuse. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system promotes antiwhite violence and seeks to make whites afraid to walk in the streets in the name of social justice and reparations for nonwhites. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches nonwhite students to be unswerving comrades and allies in a war to subjugate the white race. Look at the world of reds in the classroom and see them push a religion of hate called critical race theory, which says that whites are racist down to the core of their being and that blacks possess special characteristics and abilities which make them superior to whites. See them proclaim that whites are racist because whites are in power. See them proclaim that capitalism is system of marginalization and oppression of nonwhites. See them proclaim that capitalism is a system of racial hierarchy which places whites in the dominant position. See them proclaim that capitalism is a system which privileges white people. See them proclaim that the only remedy against laws which discriminate against nonwhites is laws which discriminate against whites and reduce whites to the status of subalterns of a nonwhite master race. See them proclaim that racism against whites is justified on the grounds of fairness and equity. See them proclaim that Western civilization must be smashed in the name of removing and displacing whiteness. See them proclaim that indigenous cultures must be returned to savagery in the name of antiimperialism and decolonization. See them proclaim that no denial, dissent or debate is possible regarding the view that whites are inherently, genetically and ineradicably racist. See them proclaim that a progressive society is a partisan society which teaches as its fundamental tenet that white people are beasts of prey who must be hunted down and wiped out. See them proclaim that a color blind society in which individuals are judged on the basis of their merits, is inequitable and unfair because it is an established fact that blacks are morally intellectually and spiritually superior to whites. See them proclaim that equity for nonwhites necessitates the destruction of white owned businesses, smashing the windows of white owned shops, and the launching of a pogrom against the white race. See them proclaim that whites must apologize for existing, for being white and for being racist, and must promise to serve the black race as its drudges and slaves: "Historically, racism meant 'a belief that race is a fundamental determinant of human traits and capacities and that racial differences produce an inherent superiority of a particular race.' If it's been more than a decade since you've been in school, that's probably your definition too. Critical Race Theory, however, has a radically different definition. At its core, it states that racism is 'prejudice plus power', which means that members of a group that aren't in power cannot be racists—only members of the dominant group can be racists. Some definitions are even more explicit: 'The marginalization and/or oppression of people of color based on a socially constructed racial hierarchy that privileges white people.' As Ibram Kendi puts it, 'The only remedy to racist discrimination is antiracist discrimination.' In other words, only whites can be racist. And more ominously, actively discriminating against whites (or 'white adjacents') is a useful tool to achieve equity for nonwhites. For those who believe Critical Race Theory, colorblindness is inherently racist. They see racism as baked into the status quo of society—it's the air that we breathe. They believe that if you're not actively attempting to dismantle racism (also known as decolonializing, decentering whiteness, or any number of other synonyms), you're perpetuating racism and you are, therefore, racist." (Anti Racism: It Doesn't Mean What You Think by the ProColumbus Academy Coalition). The ringing of a school bell announces important times to a school's students, marking the beginnings and ends of the school day, classes and breaks. Civilized people who hear these bells tolling throughout the day hear something totally different. They hear incessant fire bells ringing in the night tolling the advent of black Marxism, black national socialism, Hitler's black generation, and the death of civilization.

REDS BLOW UP THE COURTS

Demolition is the science of tearing down buildings. In their operations, demolitionists employ cranes, excavators, high explosives, wrecking balls and elevated work platforms, and seek at all times to ensure a safe and secure work environment. Students of politics have observed in present day America a campaign of political demolition, undertaken by the reds, which is as simple as it is frightening and employs none of the careful techniques employed by building engineers to ensure the safety of the people. They have observed a campaign to subvert the court system by politicizing and abolishing the legitimacy of the Supreme Court and all lower courts, by abolishing the constitutional separation of powers, and by abolishing individual rights and freedoms, and seek in their campaign to destroy as many lives as possible and render a nation conceived on the battlefields of freedom and liberty into something morally and politically unrecognizable. Students of politics have observed in this campaign the sinister hand of the mob at work, working like a spider at the center of a web, setting goals of blunt subversion and straightforward corruption to its agents operating throughout the nation, operating in every home, office and school in the land. Students of politics know a nation which has run its course when they see it; they know a nation which has been depleted of its intellectual and spiritual reserves when they confront it; they know a nation which has reached the terminal point of a poisoned development, and they do not recoil from their professional responsibility to warn as many civilized as they can about an onrushing catastrophe which has toppled the rule of law in America. They have issued their report on the reds' overthrow of the nation's court system and it features the actual program and manifesto of the reds, included so that civilized people who read it will be able to hear the actual words of the Devil himself as he agitates his Main Street multitudes to storm the ramparts of American civilization. This program proclaims that a progressive society rejects judges who respect the Constitution and obey the meaning of the constitutional text, and seeks to fill the bench with red activists in the name of "restoring balance to the courts". It proclaims that a progressive society seeks to create as many vacancies as possible on the courts and to appoint communists to fill them in the name of "court reform". It proclaims that a progressive society has increased the size of the Supreme Court, lower appellate courts and district courts and stacked them with judges who will rubber stamp radical leftist policies. It proclaims that a progressive society strong arms elderly judges into stepping down so that young red replacements can be found for them. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the notion of an impartial, independent judiciary and has established commissions of red mafia hoodlums masquerading as courts of law, commissions which obey the dictates of the capo di tutti capi: the majority. It proclaims that a progressive society has remade America's constitutional system in order to take the nation down the path of socialist tyranny. It proclaims that a progressive society has severed the judiciary from its traditional task of interpreting and enforcing the constitution and transformed it into a handmaiden of the legislative and executives branches in their quest to enact the rancor of the mob into public law. It proclaims that a progressive society has limited judges' tenures in order to make way for as many new reds as possible. It proclaims that a progressive society has increased the size of the Supreme Court in order to maximize the influence of radicals. It proclaims that a progressive society has mandated that the Supreme Court only select cases which can advance red causes, such as universal health care entitlement, and rule in such a manner that the reds will always win and the constitution will always lose. It proclaims that a progressive society has rigged and fixed the court system by packing it with judges who will enforce the far left party line and sacrifice individual rights upon the altar of social justice. It proclaims that a progressive society has established extremist courts to strike down fundamental liberties in the service of a social welfare agenda. It proclaims that a progressive court system has annulled the First Amendment right of free association on the grounds that it sanctions discrimination on the basis of race, gender and sexual orientation, on the grounds that women, nonwhites, homosexuals and transgenders have a constitutional right to invade private organizations and to be served and to be employed. It proclaims that a progressive court system has abolished the principle of equal protection under the law and sanctioned a regime of race and gender quotas and diversity timetables. Look at the world of America's reds and see committees established to hijack the federal judiciary. See the highest court in the land captured by leftist ideologues. See the judicial branch of the government politicized beyond recognition. See judicial activists on a mission to transform district courts and appeals courts into massive Soviet style parliaments of people's deputies filled to overflowing with votes to repeal constitutional rights. See a campaign to establish a radical, totalitarian majority on the federal courts in the name of achieving professional diversity. See a campaign to fill court vacancies with unqualified personnel in the form of red prosecutors, red union lawyers, red immigration lawyers and red legal aid lawyers who have renounced the guiding principle of liberal jurisprudence, the principle of determining objective facts and applying objective standards in the resolution of disputes, in favor of issuing politically and ideologically motivated rulings. See a campaign to compel judges to handle caseloads as work to be done in the service of the people's social justice revolution. See a campaign to sully judicial chambers with red partisan ideologues, agitators, tub thumpers and street fighters, and to transform judgeships into positions of mob pandering. See a campaign to eliminate the courts as constitutional checks on the power of the majority. See a campaign to place robes on red demagogues and call them judges. See a campaign to destroy the confidence civilized people have placed in the credibility of the courts by making adherence to the rule of logic and law a thing of the past: "President Joe Biden's appointment of a commission to study whether to expand the number of judges on the Supreme Court has been grabbing most of the headlines in the debate over court packing. Yet leftists are, in reality, waging a two front campaign to tilt the federal judiciary in their favor. While the highest court in the land attracts most of the attention, leftists plot an ideological capture of the lower courts. Citing an 'overwhelmed judicial branch' and a 'crisis' that has been brewing for decades, leftist judicial activists have made calls to add as many as 250 judges between the district and appeals court levels. Along with those currently vacant, filling these seats would represent nearly half of all current judgeships. So, where will all of this legal talent come from? Leftists seek to pack the federal courts with legal aid lawyers, prosecutors, immigration lawyers, and lawyers who represent labor unions. They attempt to spin this as 'professional diversity' yet in actuality, such an occurrence would amount to a radical, leftwing politicization of federal courts. What about this caseload 'crisis'? Excluding thousands of personal injury lawsuits filed for defective military earplugs, case filings during the COVID-19 pandemic were down ten percent overall. Criminal defendant filings dropped 20 percent. At the same time, in the federal district courts—where trials are held to determine facts and apply legal principles to resolve disputes—there are currently 47 vacancies out of 677 judgeships. In the federal circuit (or appeals courts), there remain zero vacancies out of 170 judgeships. The appellate courts take appeals from district courts and are empowered to review the decisions of many administrative agencies. With all the facts considered, wouldn't it make more sense to fill the current vacancies and monitor how these fully staffed courts handle caseloads when they return to normal, post covid 19? In April, just one day before President Joe Biden announced the formation of a commission to study Supreme Court reforms, Justice Stephen Breyer gave a speech at Harvard Law School in which he issued a stern warning about court packing. What the justice said applies equally to any plan to flood the lower courts with partisan ideologues. 'If the public sees judges as politicians in robes, its confidence in the courts—and the rule of law itself—can only diminish, diminishing the court's power, including its power to act as a check on other branches,' he warned." (Leftists Are Also Attempting to Court Pack From The Bottom Up by Mike Berry). A tidal wave has crashed across America and will bring, and has brought, an inundation of judges at all levels who are committed to implementing a consistent red partisan agenda. There is one dominant political party in America, the red political party, the mass political party and the mob political party, and in the final hours of the nation, these Main Street reds have sought to manipulate the number of judges in order to achieve the evil results they desire: the destruction of human progress and civilization.

REDS CANCEL THE FOURTH OF JULY

Travelers throughout the world know that unexpected events sometimes occur which force them to cancel their hoped for holidays. This is why they purchase a special type of travel insurance which reimburses them for nonrefundable costs. Students of American history have observed something in the present day which has filled them with utter disbelief. Almost unable to believe their very eyes, they have seen the American people bring down branding irons of infamy upon their country and disparage its hallowed Independence Day. They have observed the Fourth of July rendered null and void and its celebrants mocked, scorned and fastened into pillories of disgrace and humiliation. They have seen no reimbursement for the cancellation, no compensation for the annulment, but only unending volleys of verbal and physical abuse directed at those who still uphold the founding ideals of the nation and wish to march in parades celebrating its birth on the battlefields of heroism and bravery. They have observed an act of national treason committed by the red masses in control of America, and have studied the masses' program and manifesto for the destruction of liberal democracy and the establishment of a totalitarian fever swamp, a program shouted out with particular pleasure in causing pain on the day of a former national holiday which celebrated the anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence in 1776. This program and manifesto for the abolition of Independence Day, of America, and of Western civilization is the culmination of a one hundred year march of majoritarian politics, and shows what happens when a nation runs out of conscience and intelligence and descends into the rancor and resentment of those who have nothing beyond rancor and resentment suppurating at their core of their being. This program was composed by a red American majority which students of American history have characterized as a living, breathing, walking sore of envy and hatred, as the very portrait of decline and fall, tragic beyond words, of a nation which for centuries had served as the Good Samaritan of liberty to every oppressed corner of the earth. Broadcast to wild applause into every home, office, classroom and public square in the nation, this program has proclaimed that America should be overthrown because it was founded in white racism. It has proclaimed that progressive history books deny the fact that at the time of America's founding, the vast majority of Americans did not own slaves. It has proclaimed that progressive history books condemn Patrick Henry's famous cry, "Give me liberty or give me death", as the squalid howl of white, patriarchal slave masters. It has proclaimed that a progressive society seeks to make people dependent on the government for all their rights. It has proclaimed that a progressive society recognizes the responsibility of the state to provide food, shelter, education, housing and health care to the lowest strata of the population by taxing the engines and dynamos of industry. It has proclaimed that human rights are derived from society and not from human nature, and society has the right to abrogate them whenever it deems fit. It has proclaimed that in a progressive society individuals are interdependent, codependent and mutually dependent, and are never any such things as sovereign, free and independent. It has proclaimed that a progressive society sanctions election fraud, irregularities and illegalities if such serve to prevent Donald Trump from achieving power. It has proclaimed that a progressive society exploits public health crises such as the covid 19 pandemic to cheat in federal elections and ensure the victory of Joe Biden. It has proclaimed that a progressive society mails out tens of millions of absentee ballots to ensure that enough fraudulent ballots are cast for Joe Biden. It has proclaimed that a progressive society places ballot drop boxes exclusively in Democrat controlled locales in order to collect millions of unverified votes for Joe Biden and award him ninety six percent of the tabulated votes. It has proclaimed that a progressive society mails out ballot applications to every person listed on election rolls, whether the person is dead or alive, legally qualified to vote or an illegal alien, in order to secure victory to Joe Biden. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has abolished signature verification requirements for those who wish to vote in order in order to gain illicit votes for Joe Biden. It has proclaimed that a progressive society allows state executives to change elections laws, in violation of the United States Constitution which allows only state legislatures to change the laws, in order to facilitate the election of Joe Biden. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has canceled free, fair and open elections and set up elections which have been rigged and stolen in order to guarantee the predominance of the Democrat Party in perpetuity. It has proclaimed that election reform and election integrity are the greatest enemies of the reds and must be replaced by a system of election corruption and the undermining of American democracy. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has purged the Founding Fathers and fighting patriots of American liberty from the history books, from the national discourse, and from the hearts and minds of the people. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a red activist society which has pulled down American historical symbols and statues and condemned George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin and John Hancock as merciless lashes of white, capitalist racism and exploitation of the working class. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a radical left movement which has declared war on American liberty, erased the legacy of July 4, 1776, and expunged the date and the holiday. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has dismissed its border agents and Immigration and Customs Enforcement officers and established wide open immigration in the name of moral relativism and multiculturalism. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has defunded and dismantled law enforcement authorities and ignited a crime wave across America. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has instituted selection on the basis of race and gender and agitated for a new form of swastika politics in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has established massive public spending programs and fueled the fires of wage and price inflation. It has proclaimed that a progressive society allows murderers, vandals and drug dealers to run rampant through the streets while it weaponizes the law against antireds with a national following like Donald Trump, bringing unsubstantiated charges against Trump such as collusion with the Russians. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is ruled by the radical socialists who have allowed crime to skyrocket to record breaking levels while they target their political opponents with unending prosecution. It has proclaimed that a progressive society launches witch hunts against the advocates of unpopular and unorthodox ideas: liberalism, constitutionalism, personal responsibility and individual rights. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a communist leviathan which fabricates crimes against the voices of capitalism and buries them in the tar pits of character assassination. It has proclaimed that a progressive society encourages prosecutors to run for office on a promise to persecute the friends, allies and defenders of Donald Trump with every possible false charge they can think of, to wreck their lives in every way they can, and to violate every principle of justice and fairness which undergirds a civilized society. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has declared total war against Donald Trump's Make America Great Again movement and planted a forest of communist and national socialist banners screaming out the unAmerican politics of gender, race and class. Before the reds seized power and established a totalitarian society, the fireworks launched on the Fourth of July celebrated the history, government and traditions of America. Once the most important holiday on the nation's calendar, Independence Day has been consigned to a black hole of moral and spiritual nonexistence. In a nation which has fallen into the vice grip of mob rule and renounced the rights, freedoms and dignity of the individual, the Fourth of July has become as meaningless as America's founding texts and documents. Placed into a cannon marked social responsibility, placed into a barrel filled with gunpowder marked social justice, placed into a missile ignited by red professors, politicians, pundits and propagandists, the Fourth of July has exploded across the skies of a nation conceived in the glories of the Enlightenment. Its bits and pieces have settled upon the rubble of Western civilization.

FAUST'S GERMAN PLAYWRIGHT

Rummaging through the rubble of Western civilization, students of history have discovered something astounding. They have discovered a snow globe, and in this globe, they have beheld miniature scenes of the story of the West. They have studied these scenes carefully to see how the current catastrophe all around them was allowed to take place, and they have issued their report so that the vanishing pockets of civilized people located throughout the world can know about and brace themselves for the onrushing tidal waves of total evil. Here are the early scenes these students of history have beheld in the strange transparent sphere they have picked up. Satan towers over a town with his black wings spread across the land. A fog rolls in and brings forth a plague. Satan summons his favorite figure on earth to appear before him and do his bidding. This figure is a scholar, alchemist, necromancer and doctor of diabolical theology named Johannes Faust. This figure's first task, set forth to him by Satan, is to appoint a playwright to tell the story of himself, Faust, who is the preeminent symbol of the new culture of the West. This new culture, the world sees, is as opposed to Classical culture as midnight is opposed to noonday. The playwright whom Faust appoints is Johann Wolfgang von Goethe. He is Faust's German playwright and his philosophy is Faust's own philosophy, and is Satan's own philosophy, and is a philosophy of romanticism which has crashed and thundered across the face of the earth for one thousand years and pulverized it with its hammer bolts of infinite power, space, feeling and experience. The philosophy of Goethe, of his subject Faust, and of his ultimate master Satan proclaims that all so-called knowledge is limited to what man has created. It proclaims that the mind has cut man off from a world outside it. It proclaims that the senses and intellect are distorting screens and filters which produce a shadow play called physical reality. It proclaims that man creates the world by willing and thinking it. It proclaims that reality is that which is created by our own sensations, fancies, desires, preferences and imagination. It proclaims that reality is that which is projected by passion, personality and ascending spiritual consciousness. It proclaims that reality is pure change and development without any physical entities which change or develop. It proclaims that reality is grasped in wild journeys through the mountains of the spirit far removed from the realm of matter and nature. It proclaims that the reliance on reason and experience to acquire knowledge belongs in the ruins of Classical civilization, while the progressive philosophy of the West understands that reality is grasped by mystical means through feeling and intuition. It proclaims that nature ministers to the self, matter serves consciousness, objects conform to subjects, and there is no realm of nature, matter or objects which exists independently of the mind. It proclaims that the so-called physical universe is a product of creative human fiat. It proclaims that reality is the development of the self unrestrained by facts, logic or soundness of mind. It proclaims that the focus of existence is consciousness and the epitome of progressive philosophy is pure subjectivism. It proclaims that consciousness is an all powerful deity which fashions reality in accordance with its arbitrary, irresponsible dictates. It proclaims that reality is the spiritual growth of the infinite soul. It proclaims that reality is the expansion and realization of pure consciousness. It proclaims that reality is the force, vigor and energy of the will. It proclaims that reality is plastic, indeterminate and endlessly shaped and formed by the impulses of the mind. It proclaims that progressive philosophy has exposed the sham of reason and science and worships at the altar of magic and the occult. It proclaims that truth is not discovered in reality but is manufactured by the will. It proclaims that the notions of matter and causality have no basis in reality, which is constituted of the capricious, unaccountable will. It proclaims that progressive philosophy is a study of the religion and orthodoxies set forth by the will. It proclaims that reality consists in the words, the commands, the slogans, the deeds, the fanaticism and the violence of the will. It proclaims that progressive philosophy rejects the Classical life of knowledge, thought and rational investigation and tolls the Faustian bells of reckless adventure, dangerous excitement, and endless, bloody, global wars. It proclaims that reality is that which has been spun out from the depths of the untamed disciples of mindless action and heedless determination. Listen to the words of today's Westerners, today's Faustians and today's disciples of Goethe and hear them reject the realm of objective facts and numbers. Hear them reject the language of empirical analysis and exalt the language of mystical experience. Hear them reject the laws of objective truth and exalt the laws of pure subjectivity. Hear them condemn science as a body of dead, static, inert information and exalt mystical sensation as the gateway to the living, infinite reality of the absolute mind. Hear them condemn industry and technology as engines of ecological crisis. Hear them condemn reason as a screen of alienation from divine, mystical nature. Hear them exalt a new kind of antiscience which rejects empirical methods and exalts the qualities of supernatural reality. Hear them reject the processes of sense perception and exalt a pseudoscience of occult forms. Hear them reject the common sense separation between the observer and the observed, between consciousness and existence, and exalt a web of interrelations of pure subjectivity which spell out the symptoms of mental disorder. Hear them condemn experimental science as a veil of objectivity and exalt emotional contact with subjective reality. Hear them paint a picture of life and the world devoid of all facts, logic, matter and mechanism. Hear them sacrifice scientific protocols upon the altars of romanticist revolution. Hear them condemn scientific enlightenment and exalt incomprehensible esoterica. Hear them condemn the perceived world of physical individuals and exalt the extrasensory, nonsensory, parasensory oneness of all things. Hear them condemn reverence for the natural world and exalt the colors of consciousness, the development of consciousness, the morphology of consciousness, the structures of consciousness, the codes of consciousness, the mysteries of consciousness, and the embryology of consciousness: "As we fly through this age of information flow, genetics and molecular technology, people are becoming increasingly alienated from a meaningful understanding of the natural world. Science has been vigilant in its interrogation of the natural world to wrest answers from her depths of mystery. It is a quest for more and more data to fill our mountainous logbook of knowledge, written in the language of objective fact, number and the genetic code. However, this is the knowledge of a world which has been so fragmented, so dissected by our analyses, that we can no longer recognize how this myriad of independent parts relate in the larger picture. Most problematically, meaningful understanding of the world is lost because our objective analyses have denied the language of human experience in this canon of truth. Meaning however, is manifest only in the context of interrelation. The objective lens of the scientist enforces the separation between the observer and the observed and thus denies the web of relationships which we experience in life. It is not surprising then, that nothing remotely resonant with our living experience has emerged out of this vast array of inert information. It is not surprising that we find ourselves in a time of ecological crisis and alienation from nature: through this veil of objectivity we have severed our meaningful relationships with nature, and therefore, the obligation to interact with her responsibly. How then do we transcend this mechanistic world view and heal our relationship to the earth? The Schumacher course, Living Science Creatively, addresses this concern and proposes a platform for a new kind of science. This emerging discipline is a science of qualities, which values human experience and depends on sense perception to paint a meaningful picture of life. There is in fact, nothing new about this kind of science. Johann Wolfgang von Goethe (1749-1832) and his Romantic contemporaries worked diligently to hold on to a scientific methodology which valued qualitative experience of phenomena, just as the Scientific Revolution with its quantitative, mechanistic vision of the world was gaining ground. The course, Living Science Creatively, helps us to step out of this now dominant, mechanistic paradigm by introducing us to Goethe's ideas in the context of the newly emerging holistic sciences. The doors of science are opened to all with curiosity, questions, fascination and reverence for the natural world. We enter into relationship with the phenomenon as scientists, and our discoveries come alive with meaning, brought forth through the creative language of deepened experience in the natural realm." (Exploring Goethean Science At Schumacher College by Natasha Myers). On the pages of Classical civilization were written a philosophy of physical existence, common sense, ordinary experience and fundamental human sanity. During the course of Western civilization, these pages have exploded into sheets of flame, ignited by the dark, dreadful forces of Satan, Faust and their playwright Goethe.

DRUG USE DOOMS THE WORLD

Opium dens were establishments in which opium was smoked and sold. In the nineteenth century, these dens were ubiquitous and reached from China to Southeast Asia to North America to France. Although common, they served only a niche market because drug use was condemned by the general population as a stark example of immoral behavior and as a serious vice. Students of history have observed a frightening inversion take place over the past one hundred years and seen virtue and morality turned on its head. They have observed the operation of cause and effect and seen the principle that ideas have consequences wheeled into action. They have observed a process which commenced in the early twentieth century. They have observed currents of philosophic irrationalism surge and sweep through the world and seen the fearsome and terrifying results of this. They have seen the whole of society transformed into a den for drug use, while the community of nonusers has been reduced to a miniscule faction. They have read the philosophies people have been taught over the past century and seen the personal practices which have flowed from them as sewage water flows from factories of excreta. Their report is divided into two sections, one entitled The Cause, and the other entitled, The Effect, and to read it is to see with crystal, unequivocal, diamond bright clarity the fundamental tenet underlying all of life and reality: that when a process commences in a serious error, the terminal point will bring a state of mass destruction. In the first section, they have described the thought of the most influential and emblematic philosopher in the West, and in the second section, they have featured a description of drug use composed by an enthusiastic promoter of drugs. Section one consists in an explication of the philosophy of Immanuel Kant. The foremost exponent of Western Faustian subjectivism, and the greatest opponent of Classical, Greco-Roman realism, Kant proclaims that progressive philosophy consists in a thoroughgoing criticism and rejection of the possibility of knowledge. He proclaims that the process of knowing is so constructed that it terminates in nothing beyond itself. He proclaims that when we perceive an alleged physical object, we perceive only an internal mental form which has no relation or resemblance whatever to anything outside the mind, and we are blind because we can see, and are deluded because we can think. He proclaims that the mind is confined to a world of its own perceptions and the only possible philosophical position is that of subjectivity and agnosticism. He proclaims that what exists outside of our own experience and observations is a world about which we can know nothing except that it is infinite, supernatural and unknowable. He proclaims that human perceptions are creative and constitutive in character and not passive or reactive. He proclaims that there exists a real world of forces and spirits which are not physical in character, are not located in any place, are not within the flow of time, and by virtue of being nonphysical, nonspatial and nontemporal, are unperceivable. He proclaims that our perceptions are formed and structured by the fixed, universal categories of matter, space and time, and because these categories are fixed, we can never step outside them to check them against reality, and we can never perceive what reality is like in and of itself, before it is perceived. He proclaims that nothing can be the object of perception except some form, category or idea existing in the mind. He proclaims that the world outside the mind is a void, because it is immaterial and located nowhere, but a void which mystically and incomprehensibly exists. He proclaims that progressive philosophy acknowledges the fundamental fact that the alleged natural world is a human fiction and that all knowledge of reality is denied to us. He proclaims that enlightened philosophy acknowledges that the human mind is the builder of the visible world and that whatever is visible is unreal because it is visible. He proclaims that the real world is unknown, unknowable and lies all around us as an occult nothing which is something. He proclaims that what exists outside the screens and filters imposed by consciousness is something which reason and experience can know nothing about. He proclaims that human perception is shaped by innate, automatic concepts such as physical substance and all knowledge is derived by a process of pure deduction from these concepts, and is on that account purely subjective knowledge, because these concepts, being apriori, are not derived from reality. In section two of their report, entitled, The Effect, students of history have included an encomium to drug use launched by a professional user and pusher. Listen to the words of this student of Kant and hear him proclaim that what is called physical reality is a product of the imagination. Hear him proclaim that so-called physical objects are products of the mind's automatic organizing structures. Hear him proclaim that so-called physical objects are products of mentally imposed patterns. Hear him proclaim that our so-called perception of physical reality is a perception of images assembled in our minds. Hear him proclaim that what are called physical objects are products of what we see and feel, and we see nothing when we see something physical, and feel nothing when we feel something physical. Hear him proclaim that reality outside the mind is a nonphysical dimension which is incapable of being perceived or understood in any manner. Hear him proclaim that the so-called physical world is a collective delusion and through the use of drugs man can expand his consciousness and transcend this delusion and achieve the mystical perception of true nonphysical reality. Hear him proclaim that reality is that which cannot be perceived, described, explained, expressed or words or conceived in any manner. Hear him proclaim that reality is that about which we can acquire no information. Hear him proclaim that words which are alleged to describe reality are meaningless, nonreferential sounds. Hear him proclaim that the world of perception is a world of appearances and these perceptions and appearances have no equivalents or counterparts in the real world, which can only be accessed through a psychedelic trip: "As a professional in the field of psychoactive substances, I spend much of my time thinking about how I would describe the psychedelic experience to someone who has never taken psychedelics before. The most difficult part of this is trying to put me into the mind's eye of someone who has been completely sober all their lives. For me, this is a very interesting experience because I realized that all of my perceptions were based on what I thought reality should be. For example, when I looked at the computer screen in front of me, I was not seeing it as a bunch of pixels. My brain automatically saw the image on my screen and fill in all the details without even thinking about it. Or, to further illustrate the point, a chess grandmaster doesn't look at a chessboard

and sees a bunch of pieces of wood randomly placed. They see pieces, positions, tactics; patterns. When approaching this topic from an unbiased perspective, it becomes clear that our perception of reality is only a collection of images assembled in our minds. To someone who never had any contact with psychedelics, reality is limited to what they can see with their eyes and feel with their skin. They don't have the ability to perceive other dimensions that are impossible for them to measure. It is hard to describe a psychedelic experience in words, as the words one uses for describing things are not the same as those used while experiencing them. When one talks about a psychedelic experience, even if the person has never had a psychedelic journey before and they use neutral words to describe it, the listener will nevertheless get a lot of information from them. Those sounds that come out of their mouth are not just aleatory words strung together in order; they do carry a lot of meaning with them. Those who have experienced a psychedelic trip know how difficult it is to put into words. It isn't just that the experience itself cannot be explained in words, but also what they are trying to describe has no direct equivalent for most people." (Describing A Psychedelic Trip: Professionally by Alexandre Porto). Their master taught them that the world of physical objects is an illusion. They concluded that reality can only be grasped by the ingestion of psychoactive drugs. Their master taught them that reason is impotent to grasp the nature of reality. They concluded that mind expanding drugs alone can produce a true state of cognition. Their master taught them that consciousness and awareness perceive nothing beyond their own forms and categories. They concluded that reality lies at the terminus of a blazing, soaring, swooping, hallucinatory drug ride. Their master is Immanuel Kant. They are his heirs and descendants, the generation of today, the damning indictors of Faustian subjectivism, the gravediggers of the West.

One thousand years ago, in the icy regions and twilight forests of Northern Europe, the seeds of a new civilization began to germinate. This was a civilization the likes of which the world had never witnessed before and never imagined could ever exist. It was a civilization which originated in a frightening disorder of the soul which made the earth stand still and split apart when it saw the light of day. This disorder is called will worship and it made its first appearance on the stage of history when Germanic folk came together on the barbarian plains and fields. The forces of hell exploded from the depths of antimatter beneath the planet and composed a philosophy of romanticism across the sky which would darken the world forever. A landscape of snow mists and soaring forests made an infantile people react and create a mental pathology. This pathology gave rise to errors in thinking which have ramified and unwound over the past one thousand years and brought civilization to its present state of total subjectivism and the denial of physical reality. The story of philosophy in this new culture of the West is the story of Descartes' dictum, "I think, therefore, I am". This dictum encapsulates Descartes' belief that nothing can be known with certainty except the existence of one's own consciousness. It asserts that the reality of physical objects is not something which is self evident. It asserts that we perceive only a world of our own ideas and nothing material outside of our own ideas. It asserts that knowledge of the world is derived by a process of pure deduction from our concepts and is derived independently of sense experience. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Spinoza, who proclaimed that reality is a mystical oneness called Nature or God and includes an infinite mental substance which thinks and perceives only itself. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Leibniz, who proclaimed that reality is composed of an infinite number of mental substances called monads and that what are called physical objects are nothing more than products of these spiritual forces. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Locke, who proclaimed that we perceive only our own sensations and ideas, physical objects do not exist, and what lies outside the mind is a "something I know not what". The story of Western philosophy is the story of David Hume, who proclaimed that all we perceive are our own impressions and ideas, what are called physical objects are the vulgar fabrications of common sense, and what exists outside the mind is a mystical, unknowable substance. The story of Western philosophy is the story of George Berkeley, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are only ideas perceived by minds and cannot exist without being perceived, and the fundamental principle of reality is that existence is consciousness and that "to be is to be perceived". The story of Western philosophy is the story of Immanuel Kant, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are "forms of perception", "forms of intuition" and universal collective delusions, and the world outside the mind is an infinite, supernatural "noumenon" and "thing in itself". He proclaimed that the objects of consciousness are products of consciousness and revolve around consciousness, as the planets revolve around the sun, and that when we perceive something we perceive nothing, and are blind because we can see, and are deluded because we can think. The story of Western philosophy is the story of G. W. F. Hegel, who proclaimed that objects are subjects, matter is mind, and existence is an all inclusive whole which is called the Absolute Mind. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Arthur Schopenhauer, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are ideas manufactured by the human mind and reality outside the mind is an infinite, supernatural will, and the fundamental principle of philosophy is the distinction between the "world as appearance" and the "world as will". The story of Western philosophy is the story of Friedrich Nietzsche, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are the products of interests and perspectives and reality consists in growth, expansion and the will to power. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Karl Marx, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are the products of class interests, class struggle, class consciousness and the class will to power. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Gottlob Frege, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are products of language, logic, meanings, names and concepts. The story of Western philosophy is the story of William James, who proclaimed that physical objects exist insofar as they satisfy human needs and interests and possess cash value, and cease to exist when they no longer fulfill these functions. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Charles Sanders Pierce, who proclaimed that physical objects exist insofar as they predict, solve problems and advance action. He proclaimed that physical objects exist only probabilistically and not with absolute certainty. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Ferdinand de Saussure, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are products of arbitrary systems of linguistic signs. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Alfred North Whitehead, who proclaimed that the belief in the existence of physical objects is "unsuited to the scientific situation at which we have now arrived", and this situation demands that we conceive of reality as a system of mental processes and relations. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Sigmund Freud, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are products of the conscious, rational ego, while reality is a universal, unconscious, will to pleasure and destruction. The story of Western philosophy is the story of John Dewey, who proclaimed that physical objects exist insofar as they advance social needs and interests, generate positive social consequences, and reconstruct experience in socially use ways. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Bertrand Russell, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are nothing more than mental sense data. He proclaimed that what we perceive are our own sensations, perceptions, personal spaces and private experiences. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Edmund Husserl, who proclaimed that we can only perceive the experiences, essences and categories which exist in our own minds and the belief in the existence of physical objects must be subjected to a process of philosophical bracketing, reduction and expungement. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Martin Heidegger, who proclaimed that physical objects have no reality, and that existence, presence and "being there" are states of pure consciousness. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Ludwig Wittgenstein, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are products of language games, and the meaning of a word is only its use within a language game, and refers to nothing in any alleged objective reality. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Willard Quine, who proclaimed that physical objects are cultural posits possessing no greater reality than Homeric gods, that existence is not absolute but is a pure pragmatic construct, and that "to be is to be the value of a variable". The story of Western philosophy is the story of Hilary Putnam, who proclaimed that we do not perceive physical objects but only subjective forms and qualities and that what exists is determined by our own conceptual categories and structures. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Hans-Georg Gadamer, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are products of culture, subjective interpretations and historically conditioned consciousness, and the belief in the existence of a real world is the product of the "Enlightenment prejudice against prejudice". The story of Western philosophy is the story of Jurgen Habermas, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are the products of social life, social interactions, social transactions, the public interest, economic democracy and interpersonal communication. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Claude Levi-Strauss, who proclaimed that the perceived world of physical objects is a product of universal mental structures and has no objective reality. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Jacques Derrida, who proclaimed that the perceived world of physical objects is a product of race, ethnicity, tribe and culture. The story of Western philosophy is the story of critical race theory, which proclaims that the belief in the existence of physical objects must be subjected to a critical examination based upon race and viewed as a product of inferior white thinking, and be replaced by the promotion of a black, Aryan, racial reconstruction of reality. One thousand years ago, the fierce weather of psychosis raging within the soul of ancient German folk brought the rejection of an axiom held by sane, civilized people throughout the ages, an axiom established as the centerpiece of Classical, Greco-Roman civilization: the axiom that physical existence exists and is a determinate something. Reality as pure perceptions, sensations, feelings, language, texts, concepts, categories, streams of consciousness, cultural posits and the will to power. Guided and controlled by the spirit of the German necromancer and doctor of the occult, Johannes Faust, these beliefs have consumed the West. They have consumed it in the dead of night, in the dead of winter, and in a permanent ice age of the mind. They have triggered the onrushing death of civilization.

WHY THE REDS HATE COLUMBUS

Hatred is defined as an angry, resentful emotional response to people or ideas. The neurological manifestations of hatred have been investigated in brain scans. In these experiments, subjects who viewed pictures of people they hated showed increased electrical activity and blood flow in key centers of their brain. Studies of the anatomy, functions and disorders of the nervous system of the reds have revealed an off the charts neurological response to a certain figure in history. When presented with images of this figure or a catalog of his achievements, the reds explode into fits and convulsions of loathing and detestation which have flooded the poles, cortexes and lobes of their brains with charged particles of feverish electricity colliding at lightning speed. This figure is Christopher Columbus and the reds' hate him because of what he did for cause which they hate more than anything else in the world: the cause of human advancement and civilization. The reds' perfervid hatred of Columbus is an exhibition of psychopathology which has terrified and frightened the scientists whose field is mental disorder to such an extent that they want to shirk their professional responsibility and turn away from their examination of the ills which afflict the heirs and descendants of Marx. The reds hate Columbus because he cast the first truly human eye upon the New World and was the first to bring it to the attention of civilized society. The reds hate Columbus because his exploration of America led to an influx of liberal ideas which would form the basis of the United States. The reds hate Columbus because he opened the frontiers of America to the Galileos, Newtons, Lockes, Smiths and Jeffersons of the West. The reds hate Columbus because he entered an unused, undeveloped, sparsely populated land and brought the light of flourishing humanity into it. The reds hate Columbus because he confronted subhuman hunter-gatherers who wandered across the land, lived from hand to mouth, and lived from moment to moment, and cleansed America of them. The reds hate Columbus because he settled a land in which there had been no change, no growth and no improvement for thousands of years and transformed it. The reds hate Columbus because he colonized a land in which there was no wheel, no written language, no agriculture, no division of labor, no permanent settlements and only endless animal feasting and animal war, and filled it with Western life, values, attitudes and aspirations. The reds hate Columbus because he smashed the culture of primitivism, mysticism and collectivism established by the American Indians. The reds hate Columbus because he vanquished the indigenous society marked by slavery, stagnation, nonproductivity and brute force. The reds hate Columbus because he championed, in the face of savagery, the Western values of reason, science, individualism, self reliance and purposeful ambition. The reds hate Columbus because he instilled the principle, in lands which never knew it, that individuals are sovereign entities with the power of choice and judgment who must be judged on their own merits and not as members of races, ethnicities or tribes. The reds hate Columbus because he opened a sea route to uncharted territories which allowed the spread of Western civilization. The reds hate Columbus because he was driven by justice and enslaved human appearing animals who encamped and pitched tents across the land. The reds hate Columbus because he made history by discovering new territory for a social organization created in Europe which allowed human beings to work and flourish in the manner of human beings. The reds hate Columbus because he brought an end to the American Indian scourge of tribal slavery, tribal war and tribal religious violence. The reds hate Columbus because he gave primitive people a chance to exhibit human greatness when liberated from the yoke of tribal servitude. The reds hate Columbus because he sought to transplant the rational essence of civilization onto the plains and fields of America, nourish the plants of logic, mathematics and physics, and encourage the belief that the universe is knowable and predictable. The reds hate Columbus because he swept away the pall of primitive superstition which hung over the New World and championed the Western world of natural laws and the scientific method. The reds hate Columbus because he defeated the the Indian creatures of horror, the monsters of tribal warfare and religious strife, with the gleaming swords of constitutional government, the pursuit of rational happiness, and the protection of life, liberty and property. The reds hate Columbus because he transformed a harsh wilderness inhabited by savages into a nation of laws, freedom and production which, centuries later, would be burnished to a gleam by highways, computers, power plants and entrepreneurial zeal. The reds hate Columbus because he expunged from the New World the tribal moral codes which sanctioned the exploitation of the individual by the tribe and established in their place the institutions of limited government and constitutional rights. The reds hate Columbus because he championed the morality of reason, self interest and human flourishing and banished the indigenous reign of fear, obedience and social responsibility. Listen to the words of the red haters of Columbus and hear them condemn progress and civilization as rapacious and avaricious. Hear them condemn civilization as a horror and a nightmare. Hear them exalt as a paradise a continent inhabited by bestial tribes and unused and untouched by human hands. Hear them condemn modern capitalism as a system of slavery, racism, war, poverty, disease, mass epidemics and oppression of superior native savages. Hear them condemn reason and individualism as liberal poisons the only antidotes to which are primitive tribalism and collectivist organization. Hear them condemn human understanding and exalt a world of animism, spiritualism, occultism and magic. Hear them condemn human enlightenment and exalt a world of arbitrary deities and supernatural powers. Hear them condemn human endeavor, energy and effort and exalt a world in which every detail of life is managed and taken care of by the actions of incomprehensible spirits. Hear them condemn the world of science, experiment, observation and the systematic study and exalt a world of mystics, shamans, priests, prayers, rituals and sacraments. Hear them condemn moral order and respect for the rights of others and exalt a world of aggression, attack, assault, barbarian chaos, human sacrifice and the predatory incursions of animal packs and blood stained arrows masquerading as human beings. Hear them condemn the ships which brought civilization and enlightenment to the New World and launch torpedoes against the hopes and dreams of mankind. Hear them condemn settlers and explorers from the shining lands of Europe and circulate statues, stamps, coins and special days in honor of the Devil, recite a pledge of allegiance to the Native American Indian forces of darkness and retrogression, and close the books and chapters of human history: "More than a century ago, America celebrated the 400th anniversary of Christopher Columbus's voyage of discovery by hosting an enormous world's fair on the shores of Lake Michigan. This World's Columbian Exposition featured statues of the great explorer, replicas of his three ships, and commemorative stamps and coins. Because Columbus Day was a patriotic holiday—it marked the opening chapter in American history—the newly written Pledge of Allegiance was first recited in schools on October 12, 1892. Nowadays, however, an embarrassed, guilty silence descends on the nation each Columbus Day. We've been taught that Columbus opened the way for rapacious European settlers to unleash a stream of horrors on a virgin continent: slavery, racism, warfare, epidemic, and the cruel oppression of savage Indians. This modern view of Columbus represents an unjust attack upon both our country and the civilization that made it possible. Western civilization did not originate slavery, racism, warfare, or disease—but with America as its exemplar, that civilization created the antidotes. How? By means of a set of core ideas that set Western civilization apart from all others: reason and individualism. Throughout history, prior to the birth of Western civilization in ancient Greece, the world seemed impervious to human understanding. People believed that animistic spirits or capricious deities had supernatural powers to cure diseases, grow crops, and guide the hunter's arrow toward his prey. To get the attention of these inscrutable spirits, people resorted to prayer, ritual, taboo, and human sacrifice, relying always on the mystic insights of shamans and priests. This pervasive mysticism had practical consequences: festering disease, perpetual poverty, and a desperate quest for survival that made offensive warfare against human beings seem as natural as hunting animals." (Let's Take Back Columbus Day by Tom Bowden). The reds condemn Columbus because of the values he stood for and sought to implant in America. Condemning Columbus's sunlit universe of reason, science and the rights of the individual without respect to race, ethnicity, nation or tribe, the reds have cast charged particles of total evil across the face of the earth and electrocuted the soul of civilization.

RED ENVIRONMENTALISTS TURN BACK THE CLOCK

The Dark Ages is a term for the period of Western civilization ruled by Christianity. Invented by the early humanist scholar Petrarch, the term contrasts the unmitigated darkness of the centuries marked by faith and superstition with the blazing light of Classical civilization which exalted the powers of reason and science. Students of history have observed in the present day the movement of a fearsome and terrifying wheel. This is the wheel of time, and in the twilight stages of the West, when human intelligence has descended into the mist and fog of total senescence, this wheel has appeared on the stage of history. Sweeping away the glorious train of linear progress and the forward march of human enlightenment, this wheel has commenced a race back to the Dark Ages and cast a shadow of catastrophe across the world. Students of history have observed that the specific characters and religion alone have changed since the time of the original Dark Ages, while the plot and theme have remained the same: an attack and destruction launched against the human mind and against the material, economic and technical advancement associated with it. They have issued their report on this state of a civilization accelerating in reverse gear and to read it is to transport oneself into a fever swamp of cultural backwardness in which the forces of psychosis have replaced the Catholic Church with the radical reds as the actors, replaced the church's religion of God in heaven with the reds' religion of calamitous global warming due to human carbon emissions, and unleashed a new army of rampaging monsters promoting hatred of man and his achievement in a latter day Age of Faith. This is a report on a new temple, a new worship, a new poison, and a new set of daggers and assassins arrayed against the sunlit world of human flourishing, and its Exhibit A is the reds' own words, the reds' own program and manifesto, and the reds' own declarations of ill will toward all things human. This satanic, neoChristian, new Dark Ages document has proclaimed that the fact that natural disasters such as hurricanes and heatwaves are just as common today as they were at the turn of the twentieth century, when carbon emissions were much lower, should not be allowed to halt the people's march to achieve environmental justice by the banning of technology. It has proclaimed that the fact that the warmest temperatures have not increased in the last sixty years, while carbon emissions have increased dramatically, should not be allowed to impede the people's crusade to dismantle civilization. It has proclaimed that the fact that in the period from 1851 to 2020 there are no trends in droughts across Western Europe, while carbon emissions increased exponentially, should not be allowed to refute the people's religion of catastrophic anthropogenic global warming. It has proclaimed that human induced carbon emissions are incinerating the planet and are caused by the capitalist system of white racism, and the planet can only be saved by the establishment of a primitive black socialist state. It has proclaimed that the fact that human greenhouse gas emissions have not been demonstrated to be a threat to the environment or to human welfare should not be allowed to challenge the barrage of people's red propaganda which asserts otherwise. It has proclaimed that the fact that there is no evidence of a climate emergency existing on the planet, that climate change is producing small, harmless effects, and that the frequency of extreme weather events, such as hurricanes, floods, tornadoes and droughts, has remained the same or is in decline as carbon emissions have sharply increased, should not be allowed to undermine the red narrative that modern industry and technology have caused ruinous climate change and must be abolished. It has proclaimed that before the advent of human civilization, the earth was unspoiled and unsullied, being dominated by mystical Gaia, the peaceful flora, and the wild animal kingdom. It has proclaimed that the world of petroleum, the world of mass global transportation, the medical industry, and electronics and communications systems, must be abolished. It has proclaimed that the world before petroleum, the world in which millions of children died every year from malaria, neonatal infections, pneumonia, preterm delivery and lack of oxygen, all caused by the absence of medical products made from petroleum, is a world to which mankind must return in order to save the planet. Listen to the words of today's red environmentalists and hear them promote the false claim that human induced carbon emissions pose an existential threat to the planet. Hear them promote the false claim that industrial civilization has inflicted scorching droughts upon the world. Hear them promote the false claim that human greenhouse gas emissions are pumping calamity into the atmosphere and must be scrubbed along with human progress. Hear them promote the false claim that planes, trains rockets and automobiles have caused abnormally low rainfall across the world and have transformed the planet into a desert. Hear them promote the false equation that modern technology equals endless dry years equals shortages of water equals the extinction of life on earth. Hear them promote the false claims that human activity has eliminated wet conditions and precipitation across the globe. Hear them employ unjustified climate scare tactics and paint pictures of imminent global doomsday in a campaign to return mankind to the distant past when there was no forward march of civilization but only nameless eons of animal, vegetable and mineral stasis: "This year's drought scare climate hype has already started. Yahoo! News opened the season with an article promoting the false claim human caused climate change is responsible for a 'historic' drought in California and the western United States. Although drought conditions have persisted for a couple of years across portions of the western United States, droughts in the arid West are common and research shows much larger, longer term droughts have occurred there historically. There is no evidence human greenhouse gas emissions are contributing to the current drought. In a story titled California And Much Of The American West Face Mega Drought Brought On By Climate Change, Yahoo! News claims, 'Thanks in part to rising temperatures due to climate change, extreme or exceptional drought conditions are now occurring in 74 percent of the state of California, while 72 percent of the Western US is classified as experiencing severe drought, according to data from the US Drought Monitor. 'Back to back dry years in conjunction with above average temperatures have exacerbated drought conditions across the American West, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said on its website,' Yahoo! News states. 'The extent of the drought is unprecedented in recorded history, with on hundred percent of both California and Nevada now classified as experiencing 'moderate to exceptional drought.' Data shows 'back to back' dry years are not unusual in California or the Western United States. Neither California nor the western United States is experiencing a megadrought. Completely undermining Yahoo! News' alarmist story is the fact that data presented by the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in its post titled Climate Change Indicators: Drought in mid May demonstrates no trend toward greater numbers or severity of droughts 'Average drought conditions across the nation have varied over time,' the EPA post states. 'The 1930s and 1950s saw the most widespread droughts, while the last 50 years have generally been wetter than average. Over the entire period the overall trend has been toward wetter conditions.' EPA's drought and climate change indicator confirms what other sources of data have shown. As reported in Climate at a Glance: Drought, the United Nations' Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) reports with 'high confidence' precipitation has increased over mid latitude land areas of the Northern Hemisphere (including the United States) during the past seventy years. IPCC also reports 'low confidence' about any negative precipitation trends occurring globally.'" (It's Drought Hype Season Again by Sterling Burnett). A half a century of false predictions of global apocalypse has failed to discredit the reds' campaign to smash civilization. Fifty years of screaming headlines have fallen upon the deaf ears of the mob. Five decades of fabricated news items have failed to discredit the cause of the environmentalist fear mongers: More Droughts Likely, Expert Tell Senators, Prepare For Long, Hot Summers, Rising Seas Could Obliterate Nations: UN Officials, NASA Scientist: We're Toast, Snowfalls Are Now Just A Thing Of The Past, Now The Pentagon Tells Bush: Climate Change Will Destroy Us, Just 96 Months To Save The World, Says Prince Charles. Nothing by way of facts, logic, common sense or ordinary experience can penetrate the mindset of the people during the closing hours of Western civilization and refute the claims of the radical environmentalists. The people have grown weary of science, technology, industry and human development and seek a return to the subhuman stagnation of primitive existence. Under the aegis and sponsorship of reds in high positions, this death has arrived.

REDS GRADUATE HITLER'S CHILDREN

During the Third Reich, the National Socialist Party directed propaganda at children. Seeking to shape the values and beliefs of future generations, the party targeted children with books and courses promoting racial purity and Jew hatred. Students of politics have seen something which they never imagined in their worst nightmares they would ever have to see. What they have seen has assaulted their conscience as nothing else has and convinced them that they inhabit a world which has plumbed the depths of total evil and is incorrigibly committed to the ways of cruelty. They have seen the past reappear in the present and the Third Reich return in spirit and soul to today's school classrooms and organize the greatest act of child abuse ever organized in the history of mankind. They have seen primary school teachers across the world assign books which promote every value and ideal opposed to the liberal democratic order and to the Age of Enlightenment, books which seek to transform innocent children into totalitarian delinquents, crusading miniführers and rabid Red Guards dedicated to the destruction of civilization. They have seen the state of normal childhood abolished and replaced by screams, threats and protests issued by psychologically disturbed youth who have raised their fists and declared war against everything good, decent, noble, benevolent and law abiding in the world. Students of politics have issued their report on the mental violence against children committed by the reds and to read it is to descend into a raging sewer in which political pornography is splashed across young minds and the victims emerge blackened, sullied and reeking forever. Their report on the subversion of today's primary schools has to be read to be believed and describes a program and manifesto circulating and gaining traction by the minute for the propagation of Hitler's worldview repackaged in the ribbons of race and gender. This neoMarxist, neoHitlerian manifesto of war against the West has proclaimed that a progressive school system has prohibited books by world renowned children's author Dr Seuss on the grounds that the books are antiwoman, antiblack, denigrate superior indigenous savage cultures, and exalt Western, capitalist white supremacy. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has prohibited the novel To Kill A Mockingbird by Harper Lee on the grounds that the book peddles the heresy that there exist such things as false rape accusations against men. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of All Are Welcome by Alexandra Penfold, which celebrates hatred of whites, hatred of liberal values and support for Islam in the name of diversity: "We're part of a community./Our strength is our diversity./A shelter from adversity./All are welcome here." It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of Julian Is A Mermaid by Jessica Love, which celebrates transsexuals, transgenders, cross dressers, drag queens, gender nonconformity, gender psychosis, and street processions parading vice and degeneracy. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of The Prince And The Dressmaker by Jen Wang, which celebrates men who enjoy wearing women's clothes, men who perform on stage as women, fathers who imitate their tranvestite sons and dress up as women, and people who are gender queer and gender disturbed. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of Hoonani: Hula Warrior by Heather Gale, which celebrates people who proclaim themselves to be neither men nor women, neither boys nor girls, and proudly lead lives of gender indeterminacy and gender derangement. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of Americanized: Rebel Without A Green Card by Sara Saedi, which celebrates illegal aliens, hatred of America and Israel, world Islamic revolution and the sharia axis of tyranny and oppression, and condemns people who support the capitalism as racist, misogynist, Islamophobic and xenophobic. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of Front Desk by Kelly Yang, which condemns capitalism as a system of white supremacy, the exploitation of the working class, and the gunning down of blacks by the police, and extols communist societies as paragons of peace, justice and benevolence. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of They Called Us The Enemy by George Takei, Justin Eisinger and Steven Scott, which proclaims that capitalism is a system which places nonwhites in internment camps and cages children at the borders. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of An Indigenous People's History of the United States for Young People by Roxane Dunbar-Ortiz, which proclaims that Christopher Columbus and the British settlers who civilized the New World conquered a noble paradise of primitivism and savagery. It proclaims that America was founded upon white supremacy, the enslavement of blacks, and genocide against the superior Native Americans tribes. It proclaims that these tribes were superior to the West because they affirmed the illusory nature of human freedom and affirmed primacy of the community over the individual. The reds' manifesto has proclaimed that songs such as America The Beautiful and God Bless America should be banned because they promote the myth that liberal democracy is the most moral political system in the world and is superior to all systems of collectivism. It has proclaimed that the Founding Fathers of America, such as George Washington and Thomas Jefferson, were the essence of evil because they spread alien liberal values into the New World and stopped the native tribes from doing that which they were entitled to do, from fighting, killing and enslaving each other. The reds' manifesto has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of We Are Water Protectors by Carole Lindstrom, which proclaims that savagery is superior to civilization because savages are passive and do nothing and, like plants and animals, live in harmony with forces of nature. It proclaims that civilization is an evil black snake which consumes earth, sky, land and water and must be wiped out. The reds' manifesto has proclaimed that a progressive society has mandated the reading of One Person, One Vote by Carole Anderson, which proclaims that all requirements of voter identification are racist and that radical left political parties, in pursuit of social justice, have a right to commit election fraud, tampering and manipulation. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of Brazen: Rebel Ladies Who Rocked the World by Delia Ackley, which proclaims that capitalism is a system of military dictatorship and racial segregation. It proclaims that a liberated society is a communist society which has eliminated the exploitation of women and nonwhites. It proclaims that a good person is gender fluid and gender disordered. It proclaims that a good person is a supporter of Islam because its campaigns of war are the highest campaigns of peace. It proclaims that a good person is an anticapitalist radical and a supporter of totalitarian tyranny in the name of Jesus, Marx, the Koran and utopia. The reds' manifesto has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of Woke: A Young Poet's Call to Justice by Jason Reynolds, which proclaims that young people should talk back, speak up, smash windows and throw bombs at the capitalist system. It proclaims that liberal democracy must be replaced by socialist dictatorship and tribal collectivism in the name of friendship, inclusion, intersectionality, self acceptance, popular resistance, and fighting prejudice. It proclaims that capitalism is a system which denies blacks access to homes and jobs and subjects them to daily rounds of police brutality. It proclaims that physical, flesh and blood individuals do not exist and what is called an individual is in reality nothing more than an intersection of group identities centered on gender, race and class. It proclaims that a progressive society is a black supremacist society and a black Aryan society in which only black rights, black privileges, black prerogatives and black lives matter. Communist hands clenched. National socialist salutes. Pledges of allegiance to a global crusade launched by the reds to smash the traditions and institutions of free nations. Supercharged currents of mysticism, irrationalism, tribalism, collectivism, the advocacy of violence in the name of gender, race and class, and a holocaust against civilization planned and promoted in the name of women, nonwhites, transgenders, indigenous peoples, and Islamist terror. These gestures, these hails, these waves, these pledges and these electrical flows have filled today's primary school classrooms to overflowing. They have recruited children to a cause of evil and incinerated their souls. They have unleashed the floodwaters of cultural decline and opened the gates to doomsday.

GREEK AND GERMAN MYTHS: A STUDY IN CONTRASTS

Contradictions abound in the history of human civilizations. Students of civilization have been confronted with an endless succession of persons, ideas, things and situations which clash with each other to such an extent that they collectively paint a canvas marked by total chaos, and make the march of world history impossible to examine with the aim of discerning progress and order. Underlying all these myriad contrasts has been a single, fundamental contrast which has given rise to and explained them all. This is the contrast between reason and unreason, rationality and irrationality, intellect and the will, and reaching back into the distant recesses of ancient history, students of civilization have discovered a simple, early paradigm of cultural contrasts, a model, example and pattern which expresses, in the form of myth and religion, the contrasting world views of the cultures involved, and tells the story of a clash like no other clash in the history of mankind. Students of civilization have observed the opposition between ancient Greek and German myths, and have seen this as expressing the opposition between two civilizations which could not stand in greater opposition to each other, whose opposition has virtually defined the meaning of the word: the opposition between Western, Germanic, Faustian civilization and Classical, Greco-Roman, Apollonian civilization. Students of civilization have issued their report and to read it is to observe the seeds of two flowering plants which would develop, in the case of Classical civilization, into something magnificent in its total commitment to reason, and in the case of the West, into something magnificent insofar as it promoted reason and championed physics, technology and its Age of Enlightenment, and into something fearsome and terrifying, insofar as it exalted its own native Faustian will. The story of Greek mythology is the story of Apollo, the national god of the Greeks, the preeminent god of the Greeks, the most Greek of all the Greek gods, the symbol of all that the Greeks exalted and held dear as they exalted and held dear nothing else: truth, knowledge, wisdom, science and sunlight. It is the story Apollo's temples spread throughout Greece. These temples, in true Apollonian fashion, exemplified rightness of form, mathematical relations, esthetic perfection, and the paradigmatic Greek Doric order of fluted columns supporting capitals, in a world of mass, weight, solidity and stability. When Apollo was born on the floating land of Delos, everything turned to gold and the air was filled with ambrosial fragrance. The island became fixed to the earth. Swans circled the island and nymphs sang out in joy and delight. The newly born god was washed immaculately by goddesses, covered in white garments, and fastened with golden bands. Themis, goddess of divine law, fed the young god nectar and ambrosia. Zeus adorned his young son Apollo with a golden headband. Everywhere there was light, sun, fixity and firmness. Hyperborea, the land of eternal spring, worshiped Apollo above all other gods. The Hyperboreans sang, danced and hosted the panHellenic Pythian games in Apollo's honor at his sanctuary at Delphi. In this sanctuary, they planted a forest of beautiful trees and called it the Garden of Apollo. The god spent the winter months among the Hyperboreans and whenever he departed, the land would descend into cold, and his departure marked his annual death. At the commencement of spring, he returned to the land and the Hyperboreans held the Theophania festival at Delphi to celebrate his return. Apollo symbolized scientific medicine and healing and delivered people from epidemics. He carried a golden bow and a quiver full of silver arrows. He protected the health of children, educated them in virtuous ways of living, and presided over their passage into adulthood. Long hair, the prerogative of Greek boys, was cut when the boys became men, and was dedicated to Apollo. The god protected herds, flocks and crops from diseases, pests and predators. He encouraged the foundation of towns, cities and constitutions. He was the giver of laws which protected ordered freedom and the liberty which excluded license. He presided over the forms of music, song, dance and poetry which celebrated rational, orderly living. He was the inventor of Euclidean string music, was a friend of the Muses, and served as their chorus leader in celebrations. His chief epithet was phoebus, which means "bright", and this god of the human mind, this god of everything which was lawful, civilized, good, decent, virtuous, disciplined, controlled, comprehensible and rationally flourishing in the world, was worshiped by Greeks and Romans as the god of light, as Helios, as Sol and as Apollo. The story of German mythology is the story of a pathological will, unbounded and unrestrained, expanding into infinite space. Faust's first creation in the barbaric evening lands and the gloomy, lightless, airless, twilight forests of Northern Europe, it is the story of a world tossed by raging storms of insanity and incomprehensibility. It is the story of existence without identity, consciousness without objects, space without mass, and drives and decisions, wild and turbulent, without rational direction or determination of any kind. An ancient expanse covered by the woodlands and undergrowth of the romanticist imagination, extraordinary in human history and opposed to the Classical world as formless midnight is opposed to light defined noonday, the world of the Germans was the first manifestation, prefiguring and signpost of the culture of the West. This was a culture which would be by turns rational and irrational, rational in its technical and observational sciences and irrational in its philosophies and ideologies, and would be by turns impressive, imposing, frightening and evil. Informed by the spirit of a German doctor and necromancer in the sixteenth century who sold his soul to the Devil and received infinite power, feeling and experience in return, the story of German mythology is the story of Ginnungagap, a void and nothingness from which existence was held to emerge. It is the story of the formless giant Ymir. It is the story of the world tree Yggdrasil reaching into infinity. It is the story of Odin, god of war, battle, death, sorcery, frenzy, the gallows, and the mystical runic alphabet. It is the story of Asgard, the infinite enclosure of the gods, located in the vastness of the sky. It is the story of Valhalla, the infinite hall of the dead, inhabited by those who died in combat. It is the story of hammer wielding Thor, god of lightning, thunder, storms, force and strength. It is the story of Frigg, goddess of mystical prophecy and clairvoyance, who inhabited the infinite wetland halls of Fensalir. It is the story of the infinite world serpent Jormungandr who surrounded the earth and universe. It is the story of Baldr, who sailed in an infinite ship called Hringhorni, and inhabited an infinite hall called Breidablik. It is the story of the god Loki, a shape shifter and form shifter, who was able to transform himself and others through sorcery, spells, supernatural ability, divine intervention and demonic manipulation, and appeared as a salmon, a mare, a fly and an elderly woman. It is the story of Ragnarok, the age of world destruction, world catastrophe, the descent into doom, and Gotterdammerung, the Twilight of the Gods. Look at the worlds of Greeks and the Germans and see exhibited a diametrical opposition whose clarity and starkness is without parallel in the history of mankind. See a common sense ontology of individual things stand in opposition to a psychotic ontology of pure, entityless, boundless space. See an empirical ontology of physical places and determinate locations stand in opposition to a set of arbitrary concepts and categories signifying a universe of antimatter, reaching from dwarfs to elves to goblins to Valhalla to Niflheim, whose antilocation is an antiregion called human insanity: "The bases of the Apollonian and the Faustian nature images respectively are in all contexts the two opposite symbols of individual thing and unitary space. Olympus and Hades are perfectly sense definite places, while the kingdom of the dwarfs, elves and goblins, and Valhalla and Niflheim are all somewhere or other in the universe of space." (Decline Of The West by Oswald Spengler, Chapter XI). A one thousand year unwinding of a Faustian will to subjectivity and infinity has brought the world to its present state of downfall and disintegration. A culture founded upon the primacy of the will, upon the indefinite and the identityless, spread out in Faustian fashion throughout the world, has blasted and pulverized the fortresses of civilization with the death rays of an endlessly multiplying will to power. A Faustian monster marked identity politics has terrorized free institutions with bombs and bayonets firing out the tribal demands of gender, race and class. Vandals and assassins have murdered millions in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion and lowered the curtain on human progress in the name of women, nonwhites and the poor. Commenced in 1000 AD, an evolutionary development has brought civilization to this state of total collapse. Without repeal and without reprieve, this is the decree of destiny. This is the culture of the West.

SUPREME COURT MAFIA SAVES OBAMACARE

In ancient Greece, a trilogy was a series of tragedies performed one after another. The only Greek trilogy which survives today is Orestia by Aeschylus, which is the tragic story of the House of Atreus after the triumphant return of King Agamemnon. Students of politics have observed the wheel of social collapse and human decline race forward two thousand years and bring forth a tragedy of epic proportions in the world's preeminent house of liberty. The United States of America, the arsenal of liberal Enlightenment and the blazing beacon of hope to the oppressed throughout the world, has been ransacked and razed to the ground by a tidal wave and earthquake called mob rule. The house of America has collapsed and caved in from ceiling to doorjamb and left the rubble of constitutional government behind. Students of politics have picked through this rubble and discovered the final chapter of this story of national self destruction and have been saddened and dismayed at what they have discovered. They have discovered the black machinery of treason operating at the highest levels of government. They have discovered, and they can scarcely believe what they have discovered, that the highest federal court in America, consisting of nine judges whose rulings take precedence over all other judicial rulings in the nation, has been taken over and commandeered by the red mobs who had first taken control of the neighborhoods, the towns, the city halls, the state governments, Congress and the presidency. They have discovered that the mob's seizure of power over America culminated in the kidnapping of nine judges who had sworn an oath of office to uphold the greatest statement of individual rights set down in modern times, the United States Constitution. They have discovered the crime of the century: the reduction of a world renowned judicial body to a lineup of red hoodlums who have taken the mafia's oath to uphold, not the rule of law, but the violent dictates of their masters, the mobs on main street. They have discovered in this rubble the final, defining, encapsulating, dispositive statement of the one hundred year long hoodlum takeover of the Supreme Court, America and the West. In a series of three Supreme Court decisions, they have discovered the destruction and distress of constitutional freedom in America composed in a tragedy which has rivaled and surpassed the terrifying fall of the House of Atreus. Students of politics have issued their report on the Supreme Court's final killing of American jurisprudence and final overthrow of American government and to read it is to peer through a dark, stained glass window into a church chamber whose pipe organs play one tune and one tune only, play it over and over again, play it in endless loops circling in infinite space: the tune of red totalitarian tyranny. The report describes the efforts of the court to confer its imprimatur upon the mob's most cherished social program in the present day, a program which over thirty million Americans feed off of: the Affordable Care Act. The report begins with the case National Federation of Independent Business versus Sebellius, 2012. In this case, the court saved the individual mandate set forth in the Affordable Care Act. This mandate imposed a penalty on Americans who did not obtain health insurance. The court saved the mandate by seeking to square a circle and call A non A. It renamed the penalty a tax which it then justified as an exercise of Congress's taxing power. The second part of this tragedy appeared in the case King versus Burwell, 2015. In this case, the court ruled that one of the Affordable Care Act's key provisions, which provides subsidies to individuals who purchase health insurance through exchanges established "by a state", found that the federal government is a state, and as such could offer subsidies to individuals. The court again sought to square a circle and call A non A by renaming the federal government an individual state. The third and final part of this tragedy appeared in the ruling California versus Texas, 2021. In this case, the court ruled that the plaintiff's who challenged the constitutionality of the individual mandate, which had become a standalone command after the repeal of the penalty, lacked standing to challenge because they suffered no injury or harm from a zero dollar amount penalty. In an attempt to save this popular mob program, the court unconstitutionally ruled that a law has to be shown to inflict actual physical harm or injury in order to be reviewed on its constitutionality. A law is a command issued by the state to do something or to refrain from doing something. The penalties which are attached to the law are extraneous to its definition. A law is a law and is not its penalty. A law would not cease to be a law in the absence of penalties. A law is an inherently standalone command and can exist without or without a penalty attached to it. The Constitution mandates that the Supreme Court review laws passed by Congress or the states to determine their constitutionality. If the laws, the commands, the orders to do something or to refrain from doing something, violate the Constitution, the Court is duty bound to strike them down. If the laws are struck down, then any penalties attached to them are struck down as well, and if no penalties are attached, then the commands themselves are struck down. Article Three of the Constitution states: "The judicial power shall extend to all cases, in law and equity, arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority; to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls; to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the United States shall be a party; to controversies between two or more states; between a state and citizens of another state; between citizens of different states between citizens of the same state claiming lands under grants of different states; and between a state, or the citizens thereof, and foreign states, citizens or subjects." Article Three mandates that the Supreme Court review "laws", "cases" and "controversies" and says nothing about confining review to laws which cause actual physical or economic harm or injury. A law, a command, an order which violates the Constitution, by its very existence, by its very unconstitutionality, inflicts injury upon the people of the nation who are committed to obeying and upholding the rule of law. It inflicts injury upon the Constitution and those who defend it, regardless of whether it inflicts, in addition, any actual physical or monetary damage. It inflicts moral, political and legal injury, which are independent of and possess a worse character than physical or monetary injury. Look at the world of today's Supreme Court and see spurious grounds given to uphold a social program sacred to the mob. See the phrase lack of standing to sue paraded where there is absolutely no lack of standing to sue. See the Constitution rewritten to mean that only laws which inflict physical or economic harm can be reviewed by the Court. See the Constitution reinterpreted to exclude the notion of moral, political and legal harm. See unabashed deception and denial of the meaning of words employed to deny Article Three, rescue one of the largest and most popular government programs in the history of the nation, and lower the curtain on judicial review: "The Supreme Court kept the Affordable Care Act alive Thursday, ruling in a 7-2 decision that Texas and 17 other states—plus two individuals—lacked standing to challenge its constitutionality. The states had argued that the law's individual mandate was unconstitutional once it no longer carried a penalty because it had been justified as falling under the congressional power of taxation. They also claimed that the rest of the law could not survive without the mandate. The court ruled that because the plaintiffs had not demonstrated any past or future harm, they were not in a position to bring the claim. 'We do not reach these questions of the Act's validity, however, for Texas and the other plaintiffs in this suit lack the standing necessary to raise them,' Justice Stephen Breyer wrote in the court's opinion. Regarding the individual plaintiffs, Breyer noted that the lack of penalty makes the individual mandate provision of the law unenforceable, thus removing any damage. 'To find standing here to attack an unenforceable statutory provision would allow a federal court to issue what would amount to 'an advisory opinion without the possibility of any judicial relief,' he wrote. Justice Samuel Alito, in a dissent joined by Justice Neil Gorsuch, railed against the majority's decision in what he called 'the third installment in our epic Affordable Care Act trilogy.' Alito asserted that, like in previous ObamaCare cases, the court stretched to find a way to keep the law in place." (Supreme Court Upholds ObamaCare Law, Dismissing Challenge From Red States by Ronn Blitzer). A penalty is not a penalty but is a tax. The United States is not a federal entity but is an individual state. Moral, political and legal injuries do not count as injuries but only physical or economic injuries count as injuries in order for laws to be reviewed by the Supreme Court, in violation of Article Three of the Constitution. Three judicial crimes, crashes and catastrophes forming a chain of tragic events with an unhappy ending: the downfall and disintegration of American constitutional government.

REDS TAKE AMERICA BEHIND THE IRON CURTAIN

In 2007, Yeonmi Park escaped from North Korea. She crossed the Yalu River, journeyed to Mongolia, trekked across the Gobi Desert and reached her destination: freedom in South Korea. Her life then took a terrifying turn for the worse. In 2014, she moved to New York City, enrolled in Columbia University, and plunged into a nightmare she had never imagined

she would ever have to relive. When she entered the hallowed precincts of this Ivy League institution, she entered into a teleportation machine. No levers were pulled; no dials were turned; no buttons were pressed; she was involuntarily transported back to the totalitarian terror from which she had escaped and was forced to endure four years of red agitation and propaganda the likes of which she had not witnessed since she crossed the frozen Yalu River. She has issued her report to the world and to read it is to see a tragedy of epic proportions, to descend into a horror constructed by Satan himself, and to learn what happens to a free society, even the freest society the world has ever known, even a free society which for centuries had served as the preeminent beacon, arsenal and Good Samaritan of freedom throughout the world, when its supply of intelligence becomes depleted and it allows the mob to take over its political and cultural institutions. Yeonmi Park's report is the story of America which has ceased to be America in all but name and has become the type of society which for decades its people had dedicated themselves to combating and destroying without regard to the burden assumed or to the price paid. It is the story of the undermining of lawful authority and constitutional government by the citizens of a once free society, and with every page and paragraph finished, one sees one more turn of the knife in the back of a nation founded as the greatest political product of the Age of Enlightenment. Yeonmi Park's report on present day America is a report on the program and manifesto of the reds who have assumed control over the country, but it is more than this. It is a portrait of the West in its final stages of downfall and disintegration, a portrait which is as jarring, clashing and incongruous with the West which brought freedom into the world as sunlit mental health contrasts with dark, raging insanity. This program and manifesto, this derangement and disorder of a mind and a society, this savage red jungle masquerading as America, this vortex of cruelty and torture Yeonmi Park suddenly and uncontrollably went back to through a teleportation machine called Columbia University, consists of the following points, which must be constantly reread by civilized people to be believed. It proclaims that a progressive society forces publishers to deplatform the promoters of conservative and libertarian ideals. It proclaims that a progressive society has abolished freedom of speech and freedom of the press. It proclaims that a progressive society is a cancel culture leviathan which has forbidden the speaking of truth to red power. It proclaims that those who promote capitalism are racists and bigots. It proclaims that white people are born oppressors and nonwhites are their eternal victims. It proclaims that liberal democracy is systemically and structurally racist. It proclaims that racism is embedded in the liberal legal system, liberal traditions and institutions, and the liberal free enterprise system. It proclaims that capitalism imposes white behavior and preserves white supremacy. It proclaims that a progressive school system is a political organization in which red aspirations and red beliefs drive the agenda. It proclaims that a progressive school system teaches students to employ race and gender as primary identifiers by which to judge people. It proclaims that a progressive society is a neoMarxist society which views truth and reality through the lens of race. It proclaims that a progressive school system indoctrinates students in the tenets of critical race theory which seeks to dismantle liberal social and governmental norms and replace them with norms which promote black power and hatred of whites. It proclaims that a progressive society has abolished liberal freedom and opportunity and promotes the subjugation of the white race. It proclaims that the values of the Enlightenment, essential to the founding of America, have no place in a progressive society which acknowledges the overriding truths of identity politics. It proclaims that a progressive society has imbued its civil service institutions, military forces, private corporations, national laboratories and human resources departments with the dogmas of race and gender tribalism. Look at the nation of red America and see a morally decayed and barren land exposed to the vultures of race and gender hatred. See its universities reduced to agitation and propaganda machines which teach students what to think, whom to hate, whom to harass, whom to persecute, and how to target liberal democracy, Western civilization and successful, white males for total destruction. See the totalitarian nightmares of Soviet Russia, North Korea, Maoist China, Pol Pot's Cambodia reenacted on every main street, public square and college campus in the nation. See people suffocated from lack of civilized air to breathe. See people strangled to death with the garotte of political correctness. See people deprived of the oxygen of reason and thrown into mental vacuums marked gender, race and class politics. See commissars of language enforce the dogma that gender is not genetically determined and see them protect the right of transgender psychotics to be addressed by the pronouns of their choice. See the classics of Western literature thrown into the bonfires of communist censorship. See a mass epidemic of communist bias and misinformation infect every stratum of the population. See the anticapitalist, antiliberal and antiAmerican discourse of the reds become the first, second and third language of the nation. See prestigious universities and Ivy League schools transformed into Marxist bible sessions and national socialist tent revival meetings. See the nation's professors and students renounce the pursuit of truth and knowledge and don the mantles of ideological enforcers and advocates of violence and intimidation. See the love of liberty condemned as white racism and bigotry. See the regression of civilization into a raging vortex of chaos and insanity in which individual freedom is condemned as slavery, liberal equality is condemned as a regime of racism and sexism, the suppression of dissent is exalted as an act of popular liberation, and a war to stamp out advanced human social development is exalted under the banners of popular enlightenment: "As American educational institutions continue to be called into question, a North Korean defector fears the United States' future 'is as bleak as North Korea' after she attended one of the country's most prestigious universities. Yeonmi Park has experienced plenty of struggle and hardship, but she does not call herself a victim. One of several hundred North Korean defectors settled in the United States, Park, 27, transferred to Columbia University from a South Korean university in 2016 and was deeply disturbed by what she found. 'I expected that I was paying this fortune, all this time and energy, to learn how to think. But they are forcing you to think the way they want you to think,' Park said in an interview with Fox News. 'I realized, wow, this is insane. I thought America was different but I saw so many similarities to what I saw in North Korea that I started worrying.' Those similarities include antiWestern sentiment, collective guilt and suffocating political correctness. Yeonmi saw red flags immediately upon arriving at the school. During orientation, she was scolded by a university staff member for admitting she enjoyed classic literature such as Jane Austen. 'I said 'I love those books.' I thought it was a good thing,' recalled Park. 'Then she said, 'Did you know those writers had a colonial mindset? They were racists and bigots and are subconsciously brainwashing you.' It only got worse from there as Yeonmi realized that every one of her classes at the Ivy League school was infected with what she saw as antiAmerican propaganda, reminiscent to the sort she had grown up with. American Bastard was one word Park was taught growing up. 'The math problems would say there are four American bastards, you kill two of them, how many American bastards are left to kill?' She was also shocked and confused by issues surrounding gender and language, with every class asking students to announce their preferred pronouns. 'English is my third language. I learned it as an adult. I sometimes still say he or she by mistake and now they are going to ask me to call them they? How the hell do I incorporate that into my sentences?' 'It was chaos,' said Yeonmi. 'It felt like the regression in civilization.'" (North Korean Defector Says 'Even North Korea Was Not This Nuts' After Attending Ivy League School by Teny Sahakian). "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty". Attributed to Thomas Jefferson, this statement has resounded through the centuries. Its truth has been acknowledged by civilized people for thousands of years. They have long known that liberty can only be preserved by active attention and by the will to combat. This attention and this will have been expunged from America by the juggernaut of the mob. The nation which Yeonmi Park entered to start a new life has surrendered to the forces of red totalitarian tyranny and filled her with despair, anxiety and profound sadness.

SWASTIKAS HAWKED IN DIVERSITY SHOPS

In Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, Juliet says to herself, while on her balcony, "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet". This phrase soon entered into popular discourse and was held to signify the truth that things are as they are, no matter what name they are given. Students of politics have this phrase and its fundamental truth ever on their minds when they examine the present day programs and policies of the reds. For they have observed the return of a national socialist, Hitlerite regime packaged and peddled as the pursuit of diversity, equity and inclusion. They have observed the ugly return of a monster which the uninformed and the naive among the general population believed, hoped, wished and prayed had been banished forever, and they have observed this monster stalk, harass and persecute free institutions and assume control over every home, school and office in the land. They have observed the recurrence of a malignant disease and have recoiled at what they have observed, but are determined to do their duty as scholars and scientists and tell the world about this latest offshoot of Marxism, this latest national socialist rendition of proletarian socialism, this latest justification of tribal politics in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. They understand, as people of common sense throughout the world understand, that racism and sexism called by any other names, such as diversity, equity and inclusion, do not change their character and remain racism and sexism, and that the latest incarnations of swastika politics must be exposed and combated as a matter of principle and for the sake of the survival and success of the liberal democratic order. They understand that there is never a justification in a nontribalist society for selecting people on the basis of race or gender, and that when several applicants for jobs, promotions or educational admissions possess the same talents and abilities, the only fair selection procedure is one which is completely random. They have issued their report on the program and manifesto of Marx's race and gender progeny and its reading is as revolting and disturbing as it is vital and necessary for a proper understanding of the origins and causes of the decline and fall of civilization. Every decent, law abiding citizen is duty bound to study this report, to learn its terrifying message, and to maintain eternal combat and vigilance against the communist, fascist and national socialist thunder which gave rise to it. This rumbling, crashing and expanding of blazing hot ideological air has proclaimed that white people are by nature murderers, pillagers, vandals and thieves and are the worst and most evil of these the world has ever seen. It has proclaimed that the West has colonized and destroyed superior indigenous savage populations throughout the world. It has proclaimed that nonwhite cultures are superior to white cultures and have a right to commit genocide against them. It has proclaimed that Christopher Columbus was the devil incarnate because he sought to bring law and order to vast swathes of subhumanity which had never known it. It has proclaimed that Africans and Native Americans constitute master races because they are primitive and nonwhite. It has proclaimed that Africans secretly built the pyramids of Egypt and the great stone heads of the Olmecs. It has proclaimed that imprinted in the genes of white people are the attributes of cruelty, injustice, avarice and the propensity for bloody violence, and the only way to advance the peace and enlightenment of mankind is to eradicate white people from the face of the earth. It has proclaimed that white people are devoid of humanity and are walking specimens of filth and disease. It has proclaimed that white people are guilty of stealing land from the indigenous, human appearing animals who ruled America for thousands of years. It has proclaimed that white people must be segregated from nonwhites, consigned to live in squalid ghettos, and reduced to subalterns of the black bloodsuckers of wealth and property. It has proclaimed that liberal government and constitutional rights are racist Western institutions. It has proclaimed that the white people who founded the West thousands of years ago, together with their present day descendants, must be hated with a passion which knows no bounds. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has established a power structure in which men have no rights and are regularly arrested and jailed on false, unproven and word of the accuser charges of sexual assault. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a matriarchal structure which promotes hatred of men, contempt for men, discrimination against men, denigration of men and violence against men. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has established the essential connection between and interchangeability of the statements: I am a feminist, I believe in justice, I believe in fairness, I believe in equity and I hate men and want to see them dead. Listen to the words of today's diversity activists and hear them proclaim that liberal universalism must be subjected to criticism based upon the primacy of race and blood. Hear them proclaim that liberal democracy must be smashed by the cudgels of critical race theory which teaches that whites are inherently racist and must be exterminated. Hear them proclaim that the classics of Western literature must be deconstructed and analyzed on the basis of critical race theory in order to reveal their inherent white racist assumptions. Hear them proclaim that workforces must be selected on the basis of race and that the mantra diversity, equity and inclusion has a glorious synonym which political progressives ever keep in mind and by which they are ever inspired: racism, sexism and discrimination against white males. Hear them proclaim that progressive corporations foster race and gender divisions among employees and train them in the importance of giving preferential treatment to women and nonwhites. Hear them proclaim that the Enlightenment values of reason, science, liberal governance and individual freedom are products of white culture. Hear them proclaim that white people must apologize for their whiteness and prostrate themselves before onrushing mobs who pummel them with hatred, bigotry and oppression. Hear them proclaim that a progressive corporation has rejected the white man's principle of meritocracy and granted maximum privileges to women and nonwhites. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society has rejected the notion of empirical truth, legitimized race based, hate based pseudoscientific inquiry, and justified the persecution and victimization of whites. Hear them proclaim that capitalism is systematically racist and inherently loathsome and must be incinerated along with the West in a people's progressive nuclear holocaust: "Biden nominee Jill Hruby at a Senate hearing Thursday did not deny she incorporated critical race theory training at Sandia National Laboratories, where she served as director from 2015 to 2017, and asserted it was not divisive. Sen. Tom Cotton (R-AR) asked National Nuclear Security Administration director nominee Jill Hruby, 'What was your involvement in the incorporation of critical race theory or diversity, equity, and inclusion training at the Sandia National Labs?' Hruby responded, 'I am a strong believer in diversity, equity, and inclusion training for our workforce, and in fact, study after study shows that the culture of institutions is why we lose top talent, and particularly women and people of color.' 'So my first statement is I'm a strong supporter and have benefited greatly personally and been part of an institution that's benefited greatly from diversity, equity, and inclusion training,' she said. 'The issues with the Sandia divisive training occurred after I left the laboratory, and I understand it has been reviewed and if confirmed I look forward to evaluating those reviews, and make sure we have high quality training programs that continue into the future,' she added. Cotton then said he has heard from concerned former lab employees who said there were 'controversial training regimens' conducted under her watch. 'Did you direct or participate in any of what you just called divisive training sessions?' Hruby admitted, 'I did participate in diversity, equity, and inclusion training at the laboratories. The training that I participated in I never considered divisive, nor did I hear that from any employee that participated in the training at the laboratory while I was there.' Cotton asked her if she had ever participated in any training that instructed white employees to 'deconstruct their white culture or apologize for any bigotries or prejudices that they did not commit.' Hruby responded, 'No senator. The classes did explore privilege but in my opinion, they never were divisive or asked inappropriate questions of, or apologies of the white workforce.' Cotton asked Hruby if she believed that any race is inherently prejudiced, bigoted, or oppressed, or if she believed that any race is inherently victimized or oppressed. She responded to both, 'No, sir.' Cotton asked her if she saw any danger in 'telling highly skilled technicians who control one of the largest stockpiles of nuclear weapons in the world that they are working for a country whose roots are founded on systemic racism.' 'No I don't', she responded." (Tom Cotton Grills Biden Nuclear Nominee Jill Hruby On Incorporating Critical Race Theory At Sandia Labs by Kristina Wong). Every autumn in Zernikow, a rural town one hundred kilometers from Berlin, a group of larch trees formed an eighteen square meter swastika for sixty years. The yellow trees stood out against the surrounding evergreens and formed the symbol of German national socialism until they were removed in 2000. Planted by the activists, zealots and social justice warriors who have assumed control over the cultural establishment, forests of swastikas blanket the West and have obscured the sunlight of civilization.

HOLLYWOOD DIRECTOR CONTACTS THE DEAD

In times of darkness and superstition, the phenomenon of channeling was thought to exist. It was believed that special persons, objects, locations or drugs could serve as channels or media which enabled communication with a supernatural realm. Civilized people nowadays view channeling in metaphorical and symbolic terms and view it as the process of being inspired by and emulating somebody. Students of cinema have observed the greatest act of channeling ever to take place on screen and have seen in this inspiration and emulation the production of the greatest communist propaganda film by Hollywood in the past fifty years. They have issued their report and to read it is to peer through a window and observe the Hollywood red factory running at top speed, manned by its most skilled professional in recent times. This professional was Warren Beatty and he produced, wrote, directed and starred in a film about a red he idolized, a world famous red named John Reed, in a film called Reds. The film tells the story of Reed, author of Ten Days That Shook The World, a communist account of the Russian Revolution to which Lenin himself contributed a laudatory introduction. Reed was a member of the First Communist International. He was a communist writer, adventurer, observer and deceiver, and Beatty, from the earliest days of his youth, worshiped him as his preeminent teacher and guide, pursued his film career beneath his shadow, painted him as his gray eminence, and was determined to produce one day a motion picture which would sanctify the red journey his role model made and the red nightmare his role model so fervently and passionately promoted. In their report, students of cinema have constructed a composite figure and called it Reed-Beatty and to read their report is to peer, not merely through a window into Hollywood leftism in general. but to peer into a specific soul which absorbed everything Reed thought and believed, absorbed Reed's passions and prejudices root and branch, absorbed Reed's religion down to the core of this soul's innermost being, and absorbed Reed's psychic existence to such an extent as to necessitate description and diagnosis in terms of clinical psychopathology. In their report, students of cinema have brought together the program and manifesto of a man called John Reed, a man called Warren Beatty, and a psychotic disturbance called Reed-Beatty, and the results have been of interest and concern both to those concerned with the forces of cultural subversion and those concerned with the demons which undermine psychological health and well being. This program and manifesto proclaims that the highest dictates of moral and political conscience necessitate the organization of communist revolution. It proclaims that capitalism is a system ruled by robber barons and global imperialists. It proclaims that the capitalist system is an omnivorous monster which has devoured the working class. It proclaims that the working class must overthrow free institutions with the weapons of violent strikes and nationwide sabotage. It proclaims that a progressive society is a socialist club which has swept away the moral and political corruption wrought by the capitalist system. It proclaims that a progressive society is a red bohemian culture which peddles totalitarian tyranny in packages marked people's revolution, unconventionality, nonconformism and the avantgarde. It proclaims that a progressive society is a red syndicalist movement and union of communist industrial workers which has paralyzed private businesses with employee vandalism and beaten up those who uphold the rule of law. It proclaims that a good person renounces his freedom and liberty and lives and works for the sake of something bigger, greater and more noble than the self: the people's nation, state and class struggle. It proclaims that a progressive society is terrorized by red police officers on horseback who club freedom to death while riding down streets. It proclaims that a progressive society has elected red mob violence to smash through the citadels of the law, the police, the courts, the schools and the press. It proclaims that a progressive society is a raging forest fire ignited by red incendiaries carrying truckloads of proletarian dry wood and dust. It proclaims that a progressive society has been invaded and occupied by red insurgents, red armies and red partisans whose campaigns of strikes and sabotage have made fear and intimidation stalk the land. Listen to the words of Reed-Beatty and hear him condemn capitalism as a series of railroad cars, marked filth, squalor, poverty, misery, exploitation and oppression, transporting the working class inexorably into its doom. Hear him condemn capitalism as a system in which the class of unskilled, muscular laborers who create all the wealth have been sentenced to die of famine and starvation, while the class of entrepreneurs and knowledge workers who do no work are allowed to steal from the true workers and live off the plunder and lord it over the earth: "On the whole, ideas alone didn't mean much to me. I had to see. In my rambles about the city I couldn't help but observe the ugliness of poverty and all its train of evil, the cruel inequality between rich people who had too many motor cars and poor people who didn't have enough to eat. It didn't come to me from books that the workers produced all the wealth of the world, which went to those who didn't earn it." (Almost Thirty by John Reed). Listen to what living reds have to say about the film Reds and hear them praise it for its scenes of communist flags undulating across the sky. Hear them praise it for its exaltation of state controlled, slave labor and its condemnation of privately controlled, free capital. Hear them praise it for its enthusiasm for communist tyranny and its concern that liberal freedom be extinguished wherever and whenever it is exposed. Hear them praise it for its commitment to class war and its courage in promoting class genocide. Hear them praise it for its portrayal of communist hoodlums in the golden hues of myth, legend, heroism and idealism. Hear them praise it for its exaltation of communist history, communist victories, communist art, communist drama, communist romance, communist assassins, communist revolutionaries and communist mass murder: "I'm a romantic. I believe in moments when life shivers with a wild intensity. I believe that

Moscow snow just has to be whiter than starlight and that there's something exquisite and chilling about red flags billowing above all that white. I believe art and joy, rebelliousness and pathos are resources as valuable as labor and capital. I loved the movie REDS. It inspired just the enthusiasm and caring that emerges from the best writing of Bryant and Reed. The lives of Louise Bryant and John Reed are inspiring to me; their commitment and courage were of mythic dimensions. We need legends from our radical past, people to serve as models from whose failures and victories we can learn. I hope artists and writers will continue to weave tales from that history, for it is a story rich in drama and romance." (review in Peace Newsletter by Jack Manno). Listen to what living reds have to say about the film Reds and hear them praise it for its procommunist, prorevolutionary, proviolence and prototalitarian content: "This is a fascinating, extraordinary film for two reasons: first, for its beauty and political content; second, who really is this movie star Warren Beatty, and why did he make this daring, courageous prorevolutionary film?" (review in People's World by Lester Cole). Listen to what living reds have to say about the film Reds and hear them praise it for its promotion of communism to the American people. Hear them praise it for its exaltation of communist comradeship, conspiracy, excitement and psychopathic gratification. Hear them praise it for its projection and celebration of communist tyranny and the abolition of freedom as the inescapable destiny of mankind: "The image that Beatty creates is some of what hooked me into politics. A lot of that sort of political life in the sixties involved both personal and political gratification. So the fact that Beatty decided to try to sell the left to the US people, and do it by figuring out what it was that had hooked him onto it, was a good decision. A great deal of it has to do with comradeship, adventure, and so on. That is certainly a lot of the appeal of it for me--that you give your life to it; and history is not under your control." (Kate Ellis in Socialist Review). Three and a half hours of light and color splashing in the darkness, recorded on 700 kilometers of film, at a cost of 80 million dollars. It rode crests of global adulation upon waves of critical acclaim and swept the awards given by the motion picture establishment: the Academy Awards, the American Cinema Editors Awards, the Boston Society of Film Critics Awards, the British Film Academy Awards, the David Di Donatello Awards, the Directors Guild of America Awards, the Golden Globe Awards, the Los Angeles Film Critics Association Awards, the National Board of Review Awards, the National Society of Film Critics Awards, the New York Film Critics Circle Awards, the Writers Guild of America Awards, and the American Film Institute's Top Ten Award. A record breaking epic and box office megahit, Reds strengthened and supercharged the eighty year old communist propaganda tower and sent its messages racing across the universe.

REDS ABOLISH MONEY

Definitions almost always contain several components and a definition with a single component is a rare definition indeed. A preeminent instance of a definition with a single component would be the definition of physical reality: simply that which exists outside the mind. Students of economics have long known something which reds of all stripes and varieties have attempted mightily to ignore and deny. They have long known that the definition of money contains two components, in the absence of any one of which money cannot exist. The first attribute of money is that it is a medium of exchange, an item which is accepted in exchange for goods and services. The second attribute of money is that it is a store of value, an item which possesses value and use in and of itself, in addition to its value in buying goods and services. In the absence of this second attribute, an item called money could be reproduced indefinitely and could create untold wealth without work of any kind being performed. In the absence of this second attribute, millionaires, billionaires and trillionaires could be created instantly merely by printing this item in the requisite amounts. In the absence of this second attribute, an item called money would in point of fact be counterfeit money, sham money and a meaningless scrap of paper. So-called money minus this second attribute is called fiat money; it is money established by government decree and possesses no intrinsic value or use value; and it is distinguished from commodity money, whose value comes from the commodity of which it is made, such as gold or silver, a value which is independent of its function as a medium of exchange. Commodity money, such as gold or silver, cannot be reproduced or manufactured by man, and thus prevents governments from creating instant wealth out of nothing in defiance of the laws of logic and reality. In the early decades of the twentieth century, when the mob assumed control over governments throughout the West and demanded the enactment of massive social welfare programs, fiat currencies have been the norm. Abolishing the gold standard, abolishing the convertibility of a paper currency with a real good, governments adopted the red party line and commenced a policy of unrestrained printing of money in order to finance burgeoning social welfare programs and support the burgeoning social welfare scum of the earth. In 1931, Britain, obeying the demands of the mob, removed the pound's peg to gold bullion. In 1933, President Franklin Roosevelt, obeying the demands of the mob, took America off the gold standard, and Congress, obeying the demands of the mob, abolished the right of creditors to demand payment in gold. From 1944 to 1971, the Bretton Woods agreement fixed the value of thirty five American dollars to one troy ounce of gold. In 1971, President Richard Nixon, obeying the demands of the mob, abolished this convertibility of the American dollar to gold. Students of economics have examined the program and manifesto of the fiat money advocates and read in it the final chapter of Western civilization. This chapter was composed by the avatars of moral, spiritual, political and economic destruction: by the red mobs who overthrew constitutional government and sound money soon after the turn of the twentieth century. Their program and manifesto for the abolition of money and the crucifixion of wealth and work upon the Calvary Hill of counterfeit money presses has proclaimed the following points to the anxiety and dismay of civilized people throughout the world. It has proclaimed that a progressive society never thinks that unsuccessful companies should ever go bankrupt, or that bad investments should ever be liquidated, or that business losses should ever reduce assets and capital, or that interest rates should ever increase, and thinks that all work, production and individual responsibility should be abolished, and people should consume the reds' lotus plants of fiat money and collapse into misty pools of dreamy forgetfulness, unending idleness, and the loss all human mental functions. The program and manifesto of the fiat money advocates has proclaimed that a progressive society produces unlimited credit and money expansion to keep all its banks solvent. It has proclaimed that a progressive society keeps commercial enterprises in business indefinitely through endless injections of money and credit. It has proclaimed that a progressive society increases the money supply out of thin air and produces ever rising prices and an ever declining purchasing power of the money units. Look at the world of the fiat money advocates and hear them proclaim that a progressive society has been socially, morally and economically destroyed, and rendered unstable by boom and bust cycles, and buried by mountains of debt, and sent spiraling into depressions, by the price inflation caused by the endless printing of unbacked money. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society allows increases in the money stock unrestrained by the rational demand for convertibility with real goods. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society has eliminated commodity money, or money backed by commodities such as gold or silver, in favor of fiat money, or money backed by nothing in reality, and thereby established a regime of legalized counterfeiting.

Hear them proclaim that a progressive society has created unlimited government expansion with fiat money, paid down all government debts with fiat money, provided unlimited welfare support with fiat money, fueled stratospheric personal and business success with fiat money, and printed tickets on the backs of its fiat money to front row seats, before an orchestra of red tub thumpers, an ensemble of red Keynesians and a chorus of red soap box orators, to an unmitigated nightmare entitled The Bankrupt End Of Western Civilization: "Today's worldwide paper, or fiat, money regime is an economically and socially destructive scheme—with far reaching and seriously harmful economic and societal consequences, effects that extend beyond what most people would imagine. Fiat money is inflationary; it benefits a few at the expense of many others; it causes boom and bust cycles; it leads to overindebtedness; it corrupts society's morals; and it will ultimately end in a depression on a grand scale. All these insights, however, which have been put forward by the scholars of the Austrian School of economics years ago, hardly play any role among the efforts of mainstream economists, central banks, politicians, or bureaucrats in identifying the root cause of the current financial and economic crisis and, against this backdrop, formulating proper remedies. This should not come as a surprise, though. For the (intentional or unintentional) purpose of policy makers and their influential experts—who serve as opinion molders—is to keep the fiat money regime going, whatever it takes. With money being the medium of exchange, a rise in the money stock does not, and cannot, confer a social benefit. All it does is reduce, and necessarily so, the purchasing power of a money unit—compared to a situation in which the money stock had remained unchanged. What is more, an increase in the money stock can never be neutral. It will necessarily benefit early receivers of the new money at the expense of the late receivers, or those who do not receive anything of the new money stock—an insight known as the Cantillon effect. Having obtained the monopoly of money production, government will replace commodity money (in the form of, say, gold and silver) with fiat money, and the regime of legalized counterfeiting gets started. sooner or later an ever greater number of people will develop a vital interest in keeping the fiat money regime going. This is because a fiat money regime allows government to expand strongly, thereby corrupting an ever greater number of people: people seek (allegedly prestigious) jobs, generous handouts, and business opportunities offered by government. People increasingly team up with government, making their personal career and business success dependent on an expanding government apparatus. And many people even start investing their lifetime savings in fiat denominated secure government bonds. As a result, sooner or later a government default becomes a no go. In times of crisis, the printing of ever greater amounts of money for shoring up government finances (and the finances of government beneficiaries) will be cast as the policy of the least evil." (The Fiasco Of Fiat Money by Thorsten Polleit). Alchemy was a branch of ancient magic and mysticism whose practitioners sought to create values out of nothing: gold out of base metals; elixirs of immortality; and panaceas able to cure any disease. Issuing streams of paper backed by nothing and calling it money, streams which increase and multiply unrestrained to infinity, the ancient alchemists have returned. Denying that the phrase fiat money is a contradiction in terms and that the phrase commodity money is redundant, today's alchemists are red esotericists, red spiritualists and red charlatans. They have severed the connection between money and goods, falsified monetary values, and impoverished and depleted the West.

THE REDS' GLOBAL TAX REGIME

A leviathan is a mythical sea monster and has appeared in myths and legends throughout the world. It appeared as Timat in ancient Mesopotamia, as Vitra in ancient India and as

Jormungandr in ancient Germanic mythology. Thomas Hobbes describes the state as a leviathan which is omnipotent, which cannot be destroyed or divided, and inspires abject fear in the population. Students of history have observed, amidst the raging ocean storms of present day cultural decline, a vast, powerful, autocratic being emerge out of the water and cast a fearsome shadow across the face of the earth. This is the sea monster of statism; it emerges and expands whenever the masses exhaust their supply of intelligence and renounce the cause of human freedom; and in the dying stages of a civilization, when intelligence has contracted into miniscule corners and pockets of society, this monster grows to gigantic proportions and consumes every city, state and person alive. In the final stages of the West, the sea monster of statism has grown to uniquely Faustian proportions and appeared in the form of a global superstate. Students of history have observed the birth of this monster from the depths of mental and psychological deterioration, have examined its program and manifesto, and have delivered their report to the world in the dismal knowledge that it will fall on deaf ears and be ignored by all but a handful of heretics who still uphold the values and ideals of the Enlightenment, and still believe that man is a free born, rational agent and not bound and chained within a nexus of mystical social obligations. Studied with the greatest care by scholars of history, the program and manifesto of the new global state is the final chapter of Western civilization and is a detailed plan for doing and achieving what for civilized people is done and achieved only in feverish, disordered nightmares: pushing human social and cultural development into the abyss. This program and manifesto proclaims that a progressive society is a big government society whose multitrillion dollar stimulus payments, infrastructure spending and American Families Plan have to be paid for by a global tax on producers. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a global tax on corporations, global confiscation of corporations and global economic stagnation in the name of social justice. It proclaims that governments around the world must join together and require payment of a confiscatory global corporate tax to prevent corporations from escaping to countries with fair and reasonable tax rates, and to provide global money to support ever expanding welfare states. It proclaims that a progressive society levies a global corporate tax and uses the proceeds to subsidize government favored businesses such as manufacturers of electric vehicles. It proclaims that a progressive society is a global government whose politicians and bureaucrats control the allocation of all resources. It proclaims that a progressive society has created a global tax cartel to subsidize welfare programs for the shiftless vermin of the earth. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a global tax gang and tax syndicate to prevent nations from attracting new businesses and expanding their economies by lowering tax rates to fair and reasonable levels. It proclaims that a progressive society has placed consumers, producers, jobs and products throughout the world under the control of a global tax and regulation association. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a global government, a global currency system and a global tax commissariat which have special rights to take possession of and control the life and work of every person alive. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a global monetary fund and global fiat currency to provide unlimited financial support to wild animals masquerading as human beings. It proclaims that a progressive society has declared total war on limited government, free markets, sound money and fair and reasonable taxation and established a global red totalitarian tyranny in the name of the working class. It proclaims that a progressive society has seized control over global commerce and taxed profits out of existence to finance a global welfare state. It proclaims that low tax jurisdictions are antisocial and antiworking class and must be eliminated throughout the world. It proclaims that a progressive society has instituted a global corporate tax regime to obviate the need for public borrowing to support popular social welfare programs. Look at the world of today's global tax leviathan and hear it proclaim that multinational companies have a social responsibility to pay confiscatory tax rates to support the world's welfare masses. Hear it proclaim that that a progressive society has established a global minimum corporate tax rate which will force billions of dollars to flow into government coffers to protect the health and well being of the riffraff majorities in control of nations. Hear it proclaim that a progressive society is a global totalitarian serpent which has devoured places of tax safety, tax shelter and tax refuge for the producers of wealth and justified the global governmental theft of private property in the name of the people's tax justice and tax solidarity. Hear it proclaim that that a progressive society has established a global corporate tax to pay off national debts incurred by massive social welfare spending. Hear it proclaim that a progressive society is a socialist race to the bottom, a race fueled by global corporate taxation and global redistribution of wealth, a race in which poverty, misery and enslavement are equally distributed among the masses of the world. Hear it proclaim that a progressive society has established a global agreement to force corporations to subsidize public services for the benefit of lice in human form who are incapable of producing anything of value or worth. Hear it proclaim that a progressive society is a global organization for statist cooperation, socialist development and the promotion of trade between red gangster regimes. Hear it proclaim that a progressive society is a global, intergovernmental, social welfare organization whose commissioners, chancellors, finance ministers and member states have formulated the tax rules for the expropriation of Western civilization: "The G7 group of advanced economies has reached a 'historic' deal to make multinational companies pay more tax. Finance ministers meeting in London agreed to battle tax avoidance by making companies pay more in the countries where they do business. They also agreed in principle to a global minimum corporate tax rate of 15% to avoid countries undercutting each other. Tech giants Amazon and Facebook are among those likely to be affected. The deal announced on Saturday, between the US, the UK, France, Germany, Canada, Italy and Japan, plus the EU, could see billions of dollars flow to governments to pay off debts incurred during the covid crisis. Negotiated over many years, it will put pressure on other countries to follow suit, including at a meeting of the G20 next month, which includes China, Russia and Brazil. US Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen told reporters that the 'historic' agreement on a global minimum tax would 'end the race to the bottom in corporate taxation and ensure fairness for the middle class and working people in the US around the world'. UK Chancellor of the Exchequer Rishi Sunak, who hosted the summit, said the agreement would make the global tax system 'fit for the global digital age'. His German counterpart, Olaf Scholz, said it was 'very good news for tax justice and solidarity and bad news for tax havens'. 'Companies will no longer be in a position to dodge their tax obligations by booking their profits in lowest tax countries,' he said. Governments have long grappled with the challenge of taxing global companies operating across many countries. That challenge has grown with the boom in huge tech corporations like Amazon and Facebook. At the moment companies can set up local branches in countries that have relatively low corporate tax rates and declare profits there. That means they only pay the local rate of tax, even if the profits mainly come from sales made elsewhere. This is legal and commonly done. The deal aims to stop this from happening in two ways. Firstly the G7 will aim to make companies pay more tax in the countries where they are selling their products or services, rather than wherever they end up declaring their profits. Secondly, they want a global minimum tax rate so as to avoid countries undercutting each other with low tax rates. The agreement will be discussed in detail at a meeting of G20 finance ministers in July in Venice. Paolo Gentiloni, the EU commissioner for the economy, described Saturday's agreement as a 'big step. towards an unprecedented global agreement on tax reform' and promised the EU would 'contribute actively to making that happen' in Venice." (G7: Rich Nations Back Deal To Tax Multinationals, BBC News, June 6, 2021). Rising out of the waters like a column of wild, white fire, Moby Dick broke ships with his jaws and reduced them to splinters. The largest whale which ever existed, Moby Dick dismembered, drowned, damaged and destroyed everything in his sight and was the very embodiment of terror and malignancy. He was sent spiraling into his doom by a harpoon shot at him by Captain Ahab. There will be no sea captains to defeat the mighty sea monster called global taxation and regulation. Created and nourished by the red mobs who support the global cultural establishment, this leviathan has raged unrestrained and pulled civilization into the vortex.

DISINTEGRATION

Chemical decomposition is the process of simplifying a single chemical substance into two or more fragments. A reaction in which two or more products are formed from a single reactant is called a decomposition reaction. Students of history have long known that cultures and civilizations are destined to decompose by the dismal but simple fact that in any age and at any time, the supply of human intelligence is strictly limited, and that sooner or later, the supply is exhausted, and any organization will undergo a process of decline and fall as surely as carbonic acid spontaneously decomposes over time into carbon dioxide and water. Students of history have observed the signs of cultural decomposition all around them. They have observed the peculiar character of Western cultural decomposition. They have observed the unmitigated nightmare of Western Faustian decomposition and compared it to Classical Apollonian decomposition. They observed that the two instances of decomposition differ as the decomposition of the will differs from the decomposition of reason, and that the decomposition of a Germanic, Northern European culture, the culture of the West, the culture whose prime symbol is Faust, the symbol of pure subjectivism and the unbounded will, is a more horrific and more terrifying event than the decomposition of ancient Classical culture. The decomposition of the latter was the decomposition of rational intelligence and saw a crumbling of knowledge, skills and mental capacity, as a statue crumbles over time. The decomposition of the former is, by contrast, a roaring wildfire and conflagration which has consumed the land and is sprayed out by a rocket launcher, a grenade launcher, a flame thrower and a barrel of burning fuel called Faust. Students of history have observed that the difference between Classical and Western cultural decomposition is the difference between a statue of Apollo breaking apart into fragments which cover the land over a period of time, and a Faustian volcano of pure will erupting unrestrained, sending up columns of fire and ash, and burying civilization in historical seconds in lava flows of mind shackling subjectivist philosophies. In their report on the decomposition of Western civilization, students of history have included a document and have let it speak for itself. This is an immense, destructive, rapidly spreading combustion which is blazing in every home, school and office in the world. This is the program and manifesto of the reds and it is the story of Faustian heat, light and smoke whose vital oxygen is the mob. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes hatred of Israel and hatred of Jews because these symbolize Western liberal values. It proclaims that a progressive society supports Palestinian terror attacks in the Gaza war because these symbolize the Islamist opposition to Western liberal values. It proclaims that a progressive society forces white people to denounce themselves for their sin of being born and existing. It proclaims that capitalism is a system of white privilege and must be replaced by a regime ruled by people of color and people of communism. It proclaims that white people are intrinsically and incorrigibly racist and the only solution to this problem is the final solution of white extermination. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes the mass killing of police officers and the defunding of the police in the name of Black Lives Matter and vengeance for the death of George Floyd. It proclaims that a progressive society allows illegal aliens from the savage, violent waste waters of the world, from Africa, Central America, South America Africa and the Islamic world, to cross its borders and replace its decent, honest, law abiding citizens. It proclaims that a progressive society discourages its legal residents from raising families, promotes birth decline among the good and the virtuous, and encourages skyrocketing birth rates among moral cesspools crawling with passports stamped Marxism, Islam and Indigenous Cultures. It proclaims that a progressive society sanctions race wars, gender wars and class wars, wars of groups against groups and wars of all against all, under the motto: Our Diversity Is Our Greatest Strength. It proclaims that a progressive society has splintered into racial, ethnic, gender, religious, cultural and sexual orientation groups in the name of difference, inclusion and equity. It proclaims that a progressive society is a mystical, religious society whose congregation worships a god called Tribal Identity. It proclaims that America was born, not in the Revolutionary War of 1776–83 in which American colonists won independence from Britain, but with the arrival of the first slave ship in Virginia in 1619, and the nation has been dedicated to the maintenance of slavery and discrimination ever since. It proclaims that a progressive society is an antiliberal, antiEnlightenment, antiWestern society which has destroyed statues and monuments of the European explorers who discovered and civilized America, the Founding Fathers who created America as a constitutional republic, and the leaders of America, from Thomas Jefferson to Andrew Jackson to Theodore Roosevelt, who expanded and consolidated America as a fortress, arsenal and Good Samaritan of liberty to the world. It proclaims that five centuries of Western liberal capitalist imperialism have been an engine of rapacity and genocide against superior indigenous cultures. It proclaims that private wealth has been created by the exploitation of the working classes and must be expropriated. It proclaims that capitalism is a system of slavery and segregation of nonwhites. It proclaims that individuals must be selected for jobs and student placements on the basis of their race and gender and not on the basis of merit in order to achieve race and gender diversity. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes racism and sexism in the name of social equity and social inclusion. It proclaims that white people must make restitution and reparations to blacks for slavery which existed a century and a half ago. It proclaims that a progressive society recognizes group rights and not individual rights and rejects equal opportunity for all in favor of preferential treatment for some. It proclaims that a progressive society enforces proportional representation based on race and gender in all schools, offices and enterprises. It proclaims that race and gender are plus factors, positive factors, advantageous factors and deciding factors in the selection of academic and employment candidates. It proclaims that elite high schools which admit students and measure their progress on the basis of grades, tests and examinations unfairly discriminate against shiftless blacks and hispanics and produce student populations which are disproportionately white and Asian, and by the principle of tribal representation, they must be shut down. It proclaims that a progressive society acknowledges the two fundamental principles that the system of meritocracy is no virtue, and the system of racism and sexism to achieve diversity is no vice. It proclaims that a progressive society consists exclusively of schools which reflect the racial and ethnic composition of the communities where they are located. It proclaims that a progressive society punishes with censure and cancellation all those who challenge the politics of race, gender and class and the established orthodoxy that capitalism is a system of racism, sexism, oppression and exploitation. Look at the state of the world today and see Marxism and its offshoots and derivatives assume the status of ruling ideologies. See liberal values and ideals, which affirm the primacy of the individual over the group, sacrificed upon the altars of an identity based religion. See national socialism, repackaged as critical race theory, march into public institutions, private businesses, school systems, human resources departments and corporate boardrooms, and in units, modules, papers, journals, curricula and diversity training programs proclaim the end of human social and cultural development and the onset of regression into the year zero: "Critical race theory is an academic discipline, formulated in the 1990s and built on the intellectual framework of identity based Marxism. Relegated for many years to universities and obscure academic journals, it has increasingly become the default ideology in our public institutions over the past decade. It has been injected into government agencies, public school systems, teacher training programs, and corporate human resources departments, in the form of diversity training programs, human resources modules, public policy frameworks, and school curricula." (The Courage Of Our Convictions by Christopher Rufo). The stability of a chemical compound can be broken by the action of heat, radiation, humidity or the acidity of a solvent. Mass produced in the philosophic factories of the West, the actions of red heat, red radiation, red humidity and red acids have decomposed a substance called civilization.

STUDENT RED PAYS HER DUES

Poetic justice is the fact of experiencing a fitting and deserved retribution for one's actions without the intervention of another party. In the operation of poetic justice, evil and viciousness are ultimately punished and virtue and rationality ultimately triumph. Students of history have observed all too often nowadays, they have observed to an extreme and unwelcome extent, the fearsome hand of poetic justice operate against the masses. All across society and in all walks of life, people are receiving and have received their just deserts for their actions of pure evil, in a mass epidemic of evil which has composed the final, dismal chapter of Western civilization. The masses have been punished, and are being punished on an hourly and daily basis, by the stern tribunal of poetic justice. The crimes which have condemned them are the advocacy of red philosophies of various stripes and varieties, and thousands of people throughout the world have been and are being marked for death and destruction for these popular mental poisons which they promote and act upon. The operation of poetic justice exempts not a soul alive, and every man, woman and child who commits evil acts will hear a knock on the door from the Grim Reaper, handed his warrant for execution by the blindfolded goddess of justice, holding the scales and a sword which she will never relinquish. In the evening of July 18, 2021, in Brooklyn, Iowa, a twenty year old student at the University of Iowa was murdered by Cristhian Bahena Rivera, a twenty five year old illegal alien from Mexico who had crossed the border into America when he was seventeen. Mollie Tibbetts was stabbed twelve times by her killer, in her head, torso, neck and right hand, before being dumped in a cornfield near her home in Brooklyn. Examining Tibbetts' life and thought, the goddess of justice decreed that her death occur at the hands of an illegal alien as just recompense for the world which Tibbetts had promoted, agitated for and helped to create. Students of history have observed this world and issued their report. Serving at once as both a damning indictment of Tibbetts' red propaganda crusade and an irrefutable corroboration of the verdict delivered by the court of justice, their report makes for the most frightening, unpleasant and nightmarish reading imaginable during the twilight hours of civilized society. Tibbetts believed that a progressive society allows illegal aliens to panhandle for funds to reach their destinations across the country, which will be beachheads for an imminent invasion. She believed that a progressive society releases illegal aliens without Notices to Appear for deportation proceedings. She believed that a progressive society maintains nonborders which are void of all patrols. She believed that a progressive society enforces a round the clock catch and release policy for illegal aliens. She believed that a progressive society keeps its borders wide open to the bacterial swarms of the earth. She believed that a progressive society has abolished all detention facilities and stations for illegal aliens and unleashed them into every hamlet, village, town, city and state. She believed that a progressive society has opened its gates in the name of multiculturalism to flying insects of vice and depravity whose demography hails from Haiti, Venezuela, Cuba and Congo. She believed that a progressive society has abolished its Remain in Mexico program, released tens of thousands of illegal aliens into its interior, granted them work permits to take jobs away from legal residents, and promoted massive, nationwide asylum fraud. She believed that a progressive society has dissolved its borders in the satanic acid of cartels, criminals, wild dogs, gang members and lethal drugs. She believed that a progressive society clothes, feeds and houses illegal aliens in four star hotels at taxpayers' expense. She believed that a progressive society has in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion implemented an antienforcement agenda for illegal aliens and sanctioned a humanitarian, national security and public health crisis at its borders. She believed that a progressive society has robbed its legal residents of their wages, jobs and economic well being for the sake of social justice for illegal aliens. She believed that a progressive society has allowed its legal residents to be jobless, underemployed, without good wages and without competitive benefits in order to advance the welfare of illegal aliens. She believed that a progressive society allows illegal aliens to obtain professional licenses for jobs. She believed that a progressive society allows illegal aliens to become nurses and teachers. She believed that a progressive society has established that lawful presence is no longer a requirement for any state or local certification or registration. She believed that a progressive society gives welfare benefits to people who unlawfully reside within it. She believed that a progressive society is dotted with sanctuary cities which protect illegal aliens from arrest and deportation. She believed that a progressive society places the interests of illegal aliens above the rights of legal residents and shelters the former from immigration authorities. She believed that a progressive society is a welcoming society for specimens of moral corruption from across the world who pose public safety and national security risks. She believed that a progressive society has granted total amnesty to its illegal alien population. She believed that a progressive society prosecutes employers who cooperate with immigration authorities and reveal the identities of illegal aliens. She believed that a progressive society has released all illegal aliens from jail. Listen to the beliefs of Mollie Tibbetts and hear her condemn as racists all those who favor national borders and legal immigration. Hear her forceful, passionate opposition to the American melting pot of assimilation. Hear her promote an agenda of open borders, sanctuary cities and official tolerance of depravity pouring in from foreign lands. Hear her luxuriate in the poisonous blood of illegal aliens. Hear her exalt as a perfect union a nation blighted by illegal aliens. Hear her disgrace the American flag by rejecting the rule of law. Hear her promote the victimization of decent, law abiding Americans by layers of dirt blowing in from every desert, steppe, rainforest and rat hole in the world. Hear her incite fear and hatred toward, honest, hard working, law abiding citizens. Hear her encourage the darkest corners of the world to settle in America. Hear her reject the notion of universal rational, liberal humanity in favor of gender, racial, ethnic and cultural balkanization. Hear her reject immigration justice and fairness in favor of preferential treatment for illegal aliens. Hear her smash the walls of civilization and build bridges for the scum of the earth. Hear her pursue her sole interest with maximum singlemindedness and determination: tearing America apart into bestial tribal groups armed to the teeth with the arsenals of the world. Hear her exalt the courage and leadership of psychopathic aliens as they mow down innocent people in streets and squares. Hear her give moral legitimacy to the tides of color and communism washing into America from distant shores. Hear her exalt cold blooded, unfeeling, loathsome killers with foreign passports in the name of diversity, differences, compassion and inclusion. Hear her proclaim with feelings of pride, pleasure, joy and satisfaction: I am Hispanic. I am African. I am Asian. I am Muslim. I am Marxist. I am the sworn enemy of advanced social and cultural development, and I have settled in America to complete my work of demolition: "Ten days ago, we learned that Mollie would not be coming home. Shattered, my family set out to celebrate Mollie's extraordinary life and chose to share our sorrow in private. At the outset, politicians and pundits used Mollie's death to promote various political agendas. We appealed to them and they graciously stopped. For that, we are grateful. Sadly, others have ignored our request. They have instead chosen to callously distort and corrupt Mollie's tragic death to advance a cause she vehemently opposed. I encourage the debate on immigration; there is great merit in its reasonable outcome. But do not appropriate Mollie's soul in advancing views she believed were profoundly racist. My stepdaughter, whom Mollie loved so dearly, is Latina. Her sons—Mollie's cherished nephews and my grandchildren—are Latino. That means I am Hispanic. I am African. I am Asian. I am European. My blood runs from every corner of the Earth because I am American. As an American, I have one tenet: to respect every citizen of the world and actively engage in the ongoing pursuit to form a more perfect union. Mollie was nobody's victim. Nor is she a pawn in others' debate. To knowingly foment discord among races is a disgrace to our flag. It incites fear in innocent communities and lends legitimacy to the darkest, most hate filled corners of the American soul." (Don't Distort Her Death To Advance Racist Views by Ron Tibbetts). In August 2018, the body of Mollie Tibbetts was found buried in cornstalks, her body punctured in multiple places by the knife of an illegal alien. A red psychology major at the University of Iowa, a red counselor at a children's day camp at the Grinnell Regional Medical Center, and a red activist preparing for her sophomore year, Tibbetts had been sentenced to death for her actions by the court of poetic justice. Her bloodstained body was her terrifying payment.
